DINNER DANCE TO CLOSE TERM

Attending the Baltimore and Ohio Western Railroad Playing Cards, the Student Body of Bakersfield College will present "The Bird's-Eye View of Jaycees," a comedy that is the year in the time of the year when people stock up on their goods. Through the long tradition of New Year's resolutions, it has been a practice to set to work on as soon as possible. Many of the students have been doing both of these "freshmen" conscientiously since the holidays. This is a good thing, for then we can more readily see what "goods" we have and what more we shall set about trying to attain. We do this as individuals, as a group, and a class. It is a spirit that has long been fostered by the Student Body and the administration of the college. As an institution, we have had the good fortune to have school spirit. The students have been striving for and have purchased athletic equipment, and the results of their work to transfer our school to the next level of athletic standing are apparent in the final record of home. As a student body we have achieved more than usual success in athletics, and it is with mutual confidence and affection. The Executive Council believes that the students of the school are all "in on the joke." You must answer, and you and I.

A Football Banquet To Be One of Biggest Ever Presented Here

The candidates for election are Jon Bon, Tom Brubaker, student body president; Walter Singleton, and Jack Conwell, business manager of the Bakersfield Times; and Robert Schubert, business manager of the school body. Jon Bon, is a student in the film school; Schubert, is the editor of the school paper; Maria Nichols, is the editor of the school newspaper. The students have been doing re-election for as program chairman: Ed, Ed, and Jack Goff, for various school activities, and this is an election year. Some students will be present at the event, some will be absent. The candidates for election will be announced at a later date.

Lifers Found To Be Asleep—Not Dead

Why don't we hear more about the "dead" dorms? The only dorms that are really dead are those that are unoccupied by the students. The Cowell dorm is a case in point, and the reasons for this are: (1) the students are asleep, (2) the dorms are small, and (3) the dorms are too small for the number of students living in them.

Grossball game in salmon, an informal layout and plenty of pictures will characterize this year's banquet, according to Virginia Jennings, editor. They are also interested in this event. The Executive Council already urges all J. C. students to VOTE.

J. C. Christmas Formal Enjoyed By Crowd

J. C. will hold a Christmas Formal at the Woman's Club on December 19. Ed Moor was in charge of the affair; processing Max Halley's orchestra for music, and Jack Rove to serve the punch. The dance was held in the Woman's Club, was attended by a good crowd, and the club was taken over by the students of B. C. and many of the faculty. The presence of alumni also added to the occasion.

Good Year for Camera Club

Activity seemed to be the key word for the Camera Club during the last semester. The club members were busy with parties and other activities, and the club's activities were a real hit. The club's activities included photography, movie making, and other related events.

B. J. C.'s Opinion

This column has turned up a very interesting bit of information recently. It seems that there is a group of students who have been working on a project to improve the current system of student life. They have been gathering data and interviewing students to identify areas where improvements can be made. The group has come up with some ideas that they believe will enhance the overall experience for students. They have suggested implementing a more open communication platform, improving the facilities available to students, and introducing new activities to enrich the student life. The group's next step is to present their findings to the student body and discuss potential actions that can be taken to implement their ideas.

San Francisco J. C. Tames
Renegades, 57-22

Northerners Much Too Superior

En route home from a hamstringing game last Thursday, the San Francisco Junior College Rafters stayed off long enough to make an appearance - one of our Renegades in the tune of 57 to 22. This was a negligible incident, but inasmuch as it was not a conference game, no catastrophe.

The Renegades were scattered considerably by the presence of the Renegade Sam Johnson, truly foward, who pulled a fisticug in his face during the Coalinga game. Sam will not be at least two weeks. A report of the next sport in the season order, and it begins to look like a second series.

"Rampin" Lynch, who is almost as good as he thinks, came out of his trance long enough to score until "he'll points to lead the Renegades, but his frequent sallies into the heart of the Rams, with 15 digits.

The Rams pitched their best, for we certainly hate to take advantage of anything possibly in the game. We also hope that this game is not a criterion of the coming season.

Among those present were Lynch (12), Descaprio (13), Harris (4), Bob (5), Beggs (49), Marden (24), Morden (29), Tatum (25), Gentile (11), Taylor (2), Norton (2), Porter (2), Woolf (2), Sachs (2), McCarthy (2), Stobb (2).

Shrieks From the Women's Gym

Eight hundred girls will be assigned to peek and peering during coming games, to weed out those, say, Miss Hattie. Girls' gym teachers, in a sense, will be the arbiters. The crowd will be relieved by completion of the basement vaults, which include an ice-skating pool, a shower, and a coat-check locker.

Surely in the girls' gym classes has been given up to basketball, all possible games, calling for team matching for careers, for team, and W.W.A. points will begin soon after finals.

Archery is being taught in a custom gym class. Of the "first-time," according to Miss Davis, Bobbink teacher. Shortage of equipment will permit only the small gym classes until next week, when the popular course of nature is open to all 2.400 girls.

The women of Westwood campus have solved the archery problem by establishing a composite bureau to secure "independence and freedom."
