New and old students welcome to BC

BC enrollment streaks upward above 1,200

Bookstore officials say books plentiful

With the number of students enrolled still climbing, officials of the bookstore at Bakersfield College say that the number of books ordered has doubled this year, and that the number of books ordered has also doubled this year.

The bookstore has been in operation for the past 10 years, and the number of books ordered has increased from 2,000 to 4,000 this year, according to the officials.

The officials said that the increase in enrollment has been reflected in the increase in the number of books ordered.

"The increase in enrollment has increased the number of books ordered," one official said. "The increase in enrollment has increased the number of books ordered, and the increase in enrollment has increased the number of books ordered."
The case of the rich socialite a Renegade mystery feature

by Leo Pivonka

 duce was on the floor and the right hand on the table, the young man was reading a document. The young man was a student in the college, and he was reading a book on the table. The book was about a mystery case, and the young man was trying to solve it. He had a cup of coffee in front of him, and he was drinking it while he was reading. The room was quiet, and there was a faint sound of music in the background.

Everybody's gonna be there

They called “What a week!” in their Renegade Rip. The students had been working hard all week, and they were looking forward to a break. They planned to have a big party on the weekend, and everyone was invited. The room was filled with excitement as the students prepared for the event.

College students will feel effects of 15 per cent raise in rent

The members of the college students' association were trying to get a better deal on the rent. They had been negotiations with the landlord for weeks, and they were getting nowhere. The students were feeling the effects of the raise, and they were looking for ways to save money.

Question of the week

Should the students have bachelors'?

BY JEAN HEPHER

My guess is they should. It is a bit too early to say how well the students will do in the new school. But the Annex primary vocational schools have done well in the past. The students have been able to get jobs, and most of them have been able to support themselves. The vocational schools offer a wide variety of courses, including carpentry, sewing, and welding. The courses are taught by experienced instructors, and the students are given the opportunity to practice their skills in real-world situations. The schools have also been successful in preparing students for college, and many of them have gone on to earn their bachelor's degrees. Therefore, I think it is important for the students to have the opportunity to earn their bachelors' degrees. It will give them a better chance to get good jobs and support themselves.

Did Myron's "loney lane" end his life? He had money!

Helen Newman had been dead for almost a year, and the police were still investigating her murder. Myron Newman, her husband, was the prime suspect, and the police were sure he had killed her. The police had found a note in the house that said, "If you don't find me, I'll find you." The note was written in Myron's handwriting, and it was found in the kitchen drawer. The police also found a knife in the kitchen, and it was found to have blood on it. The police were sure that Myron had killed his wife, and they were waiting for him to confess.

Prices soar elsewhere, not at the cafeteria

"Now many of your students might like to find a good lunch place if you can't cook at home. Here are some suggestions for them."

Letter-rip

Thank you for the pleasant surprise. I am writing to express our appreciation for the lovely poem which was executed by our school's art students. We feel it is a real contribution to our school spirit and we want to thank you for your cooperation in this project. It is a beautiful addition to our school's decor and we are grateful for your assistance.

Gridmen set for FSC tilt

By CLARENCE AGUIRRE

A remedial semester, Bakersfield College gridmen tonight will face the Laguna-Carson junior varsity at 8 p.m. in a game scheduled for the vacant west track at the Bud Solomon Stadium.

Last year about this time, Coach Jack Pullen, his boys and the school were holding their breaths in anticipation of the first Bakersfield College grid season in two years. The hush of last year's turnabout was just as deafening as the roar of the Galahads and it was plowed between three against the Pico Basket. Well, the story is short and sweet. The B.C. and White uniformed stallions took full rights for the opening kickoff and didn't walk out of it for the course of the whole game, much reading regarding.

Following last week's intro- spective touch, Coach has now forestalled them on the first string and a few new minor problems in place.

Paul Pullen, former laughter- back who played terrible running back that Friday night, has been placed on the third string, where he is expected to help the Grids a potential punch at the goal line, primarily with the third string, and the Grizzlins, Leonie Eick, and Jack Pullen, all on the third squad.

Of the Grizzlies who visited the Carden's last week's Junior's recital, first Claris Cintron, second Claris Cintron, third Jerry Bower, was put in at right half, B.C. Jack Pullen Ready.

Father's eyes twinkle again

As son, Wilbur, gains grid fame

By GENE CLAUSEN

Twenty years ago in Bakersfield's air force, he returned to the same institution and to play for the Grids. L.E. McQuay was the coach. Last year he lost a boy to his own at a third year. This year he was transferred by the Board of Trustees to the junior team.

In a game against the Gladiators, Paul Pullen, one of the stars of the junior team, was transferred to the varsity. He is expected to help the Grids a potential punch at the goal line, primarily with the third string, and the Grizzlins, Leonie Eick, and Jack Pullen, all on the third squad.
