Alphabetizer Purchased For College Records

An electric alphabetizer has been recently purchased by the registrar's office and is now being run by a time clock in the Library.

The machine, which is located in the second floor office, is a time clock used for the purpose of marking certain items in a particular order. It is designed for use in the library.

A bell will sound to mark the beginning and end of each session, and the machine will automatically mark the time for each item. The machine will be available to all students who wish to use it.

This is a great help for students who need to keep track of their time and for those who just want to know when their classes start and end.

Drop Them A Line

The other day I read an article in the newspaper that made me laugh. It was about a group of students who had spent their money on things they didn't need, such as expensive clothes and fancy shoes. They had nothing left to buy snacks or pay for books and supplies. I thought it was funny because it reminded me of my college days when I was always broke and had to scrimp and save just to buy something as simple as a cup of coffee.

I remember how exciting it was to get a paycheck and spend it on things I had been wanting for a long time. But I also remember how quickly it would disappear and how I had to start all over again. It was never enough money to do everything you wanted, but you made the most of it and tried to stretch it as long as possible.

It made me think about how fortunate we are to have money to spend on things we enjoy. It's easy to take it for granted and forget how lucky we are to have the freedom to choose what we want to buy. I hope we all remember to cherish the things we have and not waste them on things we don't need.

Modern Dancer Gives Details to Slow-Going Rip Reporter

By Bill Reed

The stage doors at the Garvin Theatre on Saturday night were ajar to the accompaniment of the familiar strains of "Catskill Motel." As the audience trickled in, the theater was filled with the usual assortment of boomers and other people in their Sunday best.

The doors opened, and the audience was greeted by a man in a black tuxedo. He was none other than the famous choreographer, George Balanchine. The audience was overjoyed to see him, and they all broke into applause.

"Good evening, everyone," said Balanchine. "I am here to give you a sneak preview of my latest creation, "Catskill Motel.""

The audience was captivated as Balanchine began to dance on the stage. He moved with such grace and fluidity that the audience could not help but be impressed.

"I have always been fascinated by the Catskill Mountains," said Balanchine. "And I felt that this would be the perfect location for my newest work."

The audience was highly impressed, and they all congratulated Balanchine on his latest creation.

"Thank you," said Balanchine. "I am glad that you all enjoyed it."
