Several administrators from all over the United States attended this conference at which plans were formulated and programs presented, in an effort to arrive at a set of guiding principles for conducting junior college administration.

At the conference, Dr. Prator served as chairman of a committee which dealt with the formation of policies for conducting junior college administration.

In his report, Dr. Prator emphasized the importance of an athletic program in the junior college. The report stated, "The athletic program of the junior college is a most important part of the total offerings of the institution."

It is a talent show in which every Bakergfield college student is invited to compete and bring out his hidden talents. The 1001 Knights was held for two nights in 1951 and 1952.

Speak Softly and Carry a Big Gavel

College shop classes recently constructed a new gavel for Jim Blackwood, Bakergfield student body president. It is an extremely large gavel, according to Prator. It is made of wood and is about an hour old, with a bell ringer in it with the student’s name engraved on it, according to the gavel program, square-dance, bowling, tennis, and group singing around a bonfire will conclude the day’s events.

Separate Attractions

The Saturday night show will offer—separate attractions—with comedy, all-singing, featuring Chuck Caudill and his cads and the campus band with Bud Davis accompanying; singers, David Hartman and Carl Miller. According to Kirk, the attractions will include "Sally Dancer," by Nancy Rennie; and a dance, "Dancing Dancer," by Cinderella and the Sirs, and the Sirs will feature vocal numbers.

Arrangements are also made to have school talent, as a part of the program. Dance numbers by members of the Interfaith Council are being negotiated.

Anyone willing to participate in the program should contact Kirk Jorzeit. The enthusiastic response of the students so far has been most encouraging," he states.

Prospects of a conference crown practically went out the window Saturday as Santa Monica Park as the Gades fell to defeat at the hands of a timing Long Beach City college 8-6. Only a mathematical chance remains for the huskies to win the conference titles, as they trail the Sacramento and San Diego Knights by two games. There are four remaining conference contests.

Chances to close the gap will be handed to the Gades Saturday as they entertain the Knights of the Southern California and Pacific Coast at 2 p.m. on the campus grounds with the advantage going to the Gades.

In the event of a victory, the Gades would be 19-11, tied with the Knights for first place, and would be in position to come back on the自然科学 until the end of the contest.
