Weed Fiends To Feel Pinch; Restrictions

Smokers at Bakersfield college and high school have been put in their place as the result of an agreement of boundaries which was reached through a meeting held recently between the administrations of the two schools.

Those who wish to smoke may do so legally, in the parking area adjacent to the location of the former Dennen Apartments.

Also in bounds for smokers will be the block which is bounded by California avenue to the south, G street to the west, 13th street to the north, and H street to the east. This block includes the parking lot and the student lounge.

Smokers are also free to smoke in the block which is bounded by 14th street to the south, G street to the West, the railroad tracks to the north, and H street to the east. This block includes the college offices and Quickies lunch stand.

No smoking will be allowed in the area which is bounded to the south by California avenue, to the west by C street, to the north by the railroad tracks, and to the east by G street. No smoking will be allowed in the block which Harvey Auditorium is situated on.

An after-game social will be held at the lakeside school recreation room following the basketball game Friday night. These socials are to be held following every weekend home game the Renegades play on the lakeside court.

One-Third of BC Attends Xmas Formal

Bob Sisson’s orchestra provided the music for 150 couples at the annual Christmas Formal, Snowball, Tuesday, Dec. 23. The dance was held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Bakersfield Country Club.

Bob Orrick, student body vice president, was in charge of the decorations and refreshments were furnished by the Bakersfield Country Club.

One more formal is scheduled this year under the sponsorship of the student body.

College Students Attend Recent Asilomar Confab

Eighteen students from Bakersfield college recently attended the YMCA-YWCA conference at Asilomar Sunday, Dec. 28 through Saturday, Jan. 5. Asilomar is the widely known conference grounds located near Monterey.

The Rotary club financed the trip and paid for the students to attend the conference on their own expenses. The Interfaith Council sponsored and organized the delegation.

This picture is solemnly dedicated to all those male students of BC who have “too much Christmas vacation” written all over those bags under their eyes. It is dedicated in the sincere hope that a look at Colleen in a swim suit will enable them to drag through the rest of the week.
Love, Fairy Tales; Western Civilization

A press of the past is Dr. Jack Campbell's Western Civilization class. Concerned with the development of European culture, it involves such questions as. "What is exactly love?" and the discussion of chivalry, with all its connotations, stemming from the French word for horse.

Some disappointments stem from the course. The more romantically inclined were asked to learn that the Crusades were not the gallant spectacle pictured by modern historians. And the realization that knights weren't really gentlemen, but armored fanatics, but many old war horses were enough to convert some gentle souls to a life of chins grinding.

The constant mentioning of people blasted some of the more religious. It was brought out that no one was pure Estonian, despite tales of such in the family record.

A surprising factor was the complete disappearance of tales of people as such. It happened with the Assyrians, the Babylonians, and the Mystic Ages. They leave their mark upon the world. Yet, only as regies in East European fairy tales.

So, join the Navy and see the world. Join Jack Campbell's History class and learn. Help.

Half-Size Rip; No Apologies

You see, it was like this. We had a vacation, too. Christmas on San Valley wasn't all bad, but in fact, it was rather useful. The New Year's trip to "Molly" Ham- ever, was a little hectic. But the finishing touch was New Years at "24th and 6th." So with all, unhindered yanks, and an economy battle of spirits, we put out our post-holiday issue.

Love, Deanie

Gades Win Holiday Tilt; Play El Camino Friday

Working off their Christmas vacation plans, the Bakersfield College Renegades have returned to the practice courts this week to prepare for their Metropolitan Conference opener with El Camino College Friday at Lakerside, starting at 7 p.m. On the following night they travel to Van Nuys for their second league encounter with L.A. Valley.

With a softer league schedule ahead of them, the Gades have to be set finalists in every game if they wish to play in the upper division. All of the Metropolitan Conference's regular season games improve performances at the Coliseum Tournament a few weeks past.

Mike Holmes, center; Jack Bingham, center, and Roy Stevens, back, are good candidates for the conference title as well as the conference tournament. They have been instrumental in the team's success so far this season.

Lakeside Day

Lakeside Day, Saturday, January 16, 1953, will be the day on which the Gades will play El Camino College. The game will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Coliseum Tournament in Los Angeles.

The Gades have been road warriors all season, and they will be looking for a win against El Camino to improve their conference record. The game will be a test of their ability to compete against a stronger team.

Gadeville Gets Set to Have Itself a Ball

All Bakersfield College students are invited to visit their favorite bands at the annual Lakeside Frolics this Saturday night, December 17, beginning at 6:30 at the Lakeside Field. The music will include a variety of bands, including the Lakerside Rock 'n' Roll Band, the Bakersfield College Band, and the Bakersfield College Swing Band.

The program will include a variety of music genres, including rock and roll, jazz, and country. The main event will be the Lakeside Frolics, a traditional dance with a Western theme.

It is interesting how the Renegades became the official title of the Bakersfield College athletic teams. It began back in the twenties when the Drillers, under the leadership of “Goldie” Griffiths, were winning them all. The members of the Drillers team that graduated and went on to Bakersfield college called themselves the Renega

how the Renegades became the offi

With Lakeside Day coming up tomorrow night, there are two things that are needed. A student pop band with song and yell leaders have been missing at the previ

these things mentioned haven’t been on hand is because the student sec

last Friday’s game with El Camino.
If these two student factions got together Lakeside Day would even be a bigger event.

Education in America belongs to the people. They founded our first free public schools; they have guarded the growth of learning from the first beginnings to the modern, comprehensive, school plant of today. And it is this heritage of equal and universal education that sets the United States apart as the center of today's free world; this we believe. Therefore, we dedicate this special issue of the Renegade Rip to the American public, our patrons—and our friends.

"Junior Colleges Must Be Prepared"

Mr. McCuen, district superintendent of the Kern County Union High School and Junior College District, has been associated with educational institutions for over 30 years. He served as an instructor at Bakersfield College and Bakersfield High School. In 1936, he was appointed assistant district superintendent in charge of business affairs and was named district superintendent in June, 1945.

Mr. McCuen has also been closely identified with educational organizations in the state. He has served as president of the Southern Section of the California School Business Officials Association, and was also secretary of the state organization.

T. L. MCCUEN
District Superintendent
Kern County Union High School and Junior College District

On January 28, the voters of the Kern County Union High School and Junior College District will determine whether or not plans are to be made for the removal of Bakersfield College to its new campus.

The removal of Bakersfield College from its present site on the new 150-acre site on the Kern River Bluffs, is one of the major items included in the specific building requirements necessitating the bond election. The new site overlooking Bakersfield and surrounding areas should lend itself readily to the development of an excellent college campus.

The severe damage to the Bakersfield campus by the earthquake is readily apparent to all students and faculty of Bakersfield College. The need for immediate replacement and rehabilitation of buildings on this campus should be obvious. In addition to the problems resulting from the earthquakes, many of our schools are overcrowded because of increasing enrollments. Enrollments will continue to increase over the next decade.

It is noted that in 1942, the district had 3,491 students. This figure reached 9,314 in October of this year and studies indicate that we may expect 16,000 students in just ten years. The enrollment estimates for 1960-65 and the interim period are based on a careful study of population growth and school enrollments in Kern County. One of the major factors in studying population trends is that of the number of births.

In 1934 there were 1,588 births in this county. In 1931 the number of births totalled 3,479, while in 1951 the figure had increased to 6,915 births. This has important implications for the schools, as it is noted that the high school enrollments now are drawn from the 9,027 births for the four-year period 1943-1953, while the enrollments in 1955-65 will be drawn from 11,072 births, during the period 1955-59 when there was a total of 22,706 births in the county.

The opening of the new North High School in the district next fall will give only partial relief. It will be necessary to construct additions at Arvin, East Bakersfield, Kern Valley, McFarland and Shafter High Schools. By 1957 another new high school will be necessary, in addition to the relocation of Bakersfield College on its own campus.

Concerning the development of Bakersfield College and its removal to its own campus, much could be said. Briefly summarized, it should be noted that the junior college movement has become one of the most important and significant contributions to public education in this nation. In California, the president of the state's largest university has stated that the junior colleges must be prepared to assume greater and greater responsibilities for educating youth and young adults in the post-high school period, and further, that the fate of the university is linked up with that of the junior colleges.

In recent years, the total junior college registration in California has far exceeded the total freshman and sophomore enrollment in four-year colleges and universities of the state. Bakersfield College must assume an increasingly important role in providing post-high school education to those in this area desiring it.

Much study has gone into the development of the preliminary requirements for the new Bakersfield College campus. Preliminary plans are now being prepared. As soon as these preliminary drawings have been approved by the State Department of Education and the Board of Trustees, working drawings will be prepared by the architects.

Following the completion of the working drawings, a stage which will require several months, the contract for the construction of the new campus will be awarded by the Board of Trustees and construction will begin under way—it will, that is, if the voters of the district give their approval to the $17,000,000 bond issue at the election January 28.
"The Pattern for Growth"

by Dr. Ralph Prator
President, Bakersfield College

The pattern for the growth and development of Bakersfield College has already been set. Institutions of our kind not only in the state of California but in other states of the United States are coming to be known as Community Colleges. This term took on real meaning with the publishing of the Report of the President's Commission on Higher Education in 1916. At the time of the report the classrooms and halls of our collegiate institutions were being crowded with the returning veterans of World War II. All administrators of collegiate institutions were looking anxiously at the facilities which they had and measuring them against the board of students clamoring for admission.

Along with the enrollment predictions for the future which were startling to say the least the concept of the community college was developed. It is tremendously expensive to move students in large numbers into already congested areas; to provide for them not only classroom and other facilities directly concerned with their educational program but also residence halls and other facilities which make for comfort of living. These problems led to the realization that, if possible, colleges should be developed in areas where students could live at home and yet get at least the first two years of college training. The President's Commission estimated that by the year 1950 four million students would be enrolled in our colleges and universities. Our maximum college enrollment in any given year to this time was approximately two and one-quarter million in the school year 1949-50. If the President's Commission is correct, we may expect a tremendous increase in college enrollment within the next few years. This trend will have its repercussions right here at home.

We know that Bakersfield College will be considerably larger than it is at the present time. As serious as the prospects of a greatly increased enrollment is for Bakersfield College, the prospect of the wide variety of offerings which we must have is even more impressive. The students who will come to Bakersfield College in the future will represent all walks of life and will have understandable ambitions to get what is necessary for them to make a better living and a better life.

The program is already evolving. In the occupational survey of the Kern County Union High School and Junior College District made in 1948-49, many of the future occupational outlets for young people of college age were clearly indicated. The part of Kern County served by this district is in great need of occupational education in highly specialized areas for which Bakersfield College may very well assume the responsibility. The business activities connected with the petroleum and agriculture interests of this area will demand a large number of young people with as much as two years of college training. The petroleum industry may need technologists and others who can be quickly trained at Bakersfield College. Agriculture, too, will require a program of education superimposed on the program of agricultural education now offered in our high schools. The college is already engaged in meeting a number of these occupational needs. For example, in the course of study at the present time are included cotton classifying, vegetable and fruit classifying. More courses of this kind will need to be developed and we shall have to get into the heart of problems of conservation and soil chemistry. In the area of trades and industry Bakersfield College will become the cornerstone of the vocational technical education of the high schools of the district. Courses in the building trades which are already proposed and will make their appearance in the College program soon will take their place alongside such highly specialized courses as home appliance repairs, the automatic transmission and electrical.

The whole area of home making education will have an important place in the future educational program of Bakersfield College.

Many of our students will enter Bakersfield College with special objectives that can be satisfied within a reasonably short period of time. Others of our students will continue on for two years of training and some may even require more than that time to accomplish the skills and knowledge necessary for their chosen jobs or occupations. Parallel to these courses will have to be some emphasis on those broad academic courses now titled general education. The specific mission of such courses is not to help students make a living but rather to help a student make a life and such courses as fit into the humanities, the (Continued on page 12)

A SURVEY OF PLANS

The New Bakersfield College
by Dr. Edward Simonsen, Dean of Men, Bakersfield College and Robert Folger, Staff Writer, Renegade Rip

The dream of thousands of Kern County citizens will come true the day classes open on the new Bakersfield College campus. The proposed college, a $7,661,000 project, will be built on an 150-acre site which has already been purchased by the Kern County Union High School District.

The land, situated approximately a mile and one-half northwest of East Bakersfield — High School and east of River Boulevard — was selected and acquired in 1951. Plans for the new plant, which will accommodate some 2,000 students, are now on the architects’ drawing boards.

One of the most outstanding features of the new college will be its flexbility. Since it will have to meet the needs of a growing community, the architects are providing for the use of a 'modular' system in constructing the buildings and classrooms. The modular plan allows for rapid change and growth. For example, it is possible to enlarge the size of rooms quickly and efficiently by removing entire 'walls.' While it appears that this would be a tremendous undertaking, it can actually be accomplished in a matter of hours. The construction of the buildings, however, will in no way be weakened by this speedy transformation. This system, it is hoped, will meet the problem of increased enrollments which are swelling the college ranks yearly.

The focal point of the proposed college will be the library. The library, which is concieved as a modern two-story structure, will accommodate the 50 students at one time and will be considered the academic center of the school.

Another equally important unit will be the Campus Center. It will be the gathering place for the many social activities and organizations of the college. It will provide facilities for the cafeteria, student lounge, bookstore, student newspaper and yearbook, student body government offices, and will be considered the 'living room' of the campus.

A residence hall for women and one for men are planned for the campus and will be located reasonably close to the campus center. Each will contain approximately 40 rooms.

Another of the outstanding features of the proposed new college is a stadium which will seat some 11,000 people. The stadium will be built in a natural bowl with provisions for future expansion. The structure will be complete with running track and related facilities.

Nearing the final stages of the preliminary drawings are the science building, the social science building, We're Ready to Do Our Part...

Resolution of the Executive Council of the Associated Students of Bakersfield College unanimously passed January 6, 1953.

BE IT RESOLVED: That the Associated Students of Bakersfield College go on record as endorsing the Kern County Union High School and Junior College District bond issue to be placed before the district's voters on January 28, 1953, and be it further resolved: That the Associated Students of Bakersfield College support this bond issue by any and all appropriate means of their disposal, and that they collectively and as individuals promote its passage, thereby fostering the vital program of secondary education in Kern County.

...social sciences, into science, mathematics, and communications...will predominate in this area of instruction as they have predominated in the liberal arts programs of our traditional colleges for so many years.

Will one of the most important missions of the college will be the preparation of young people in the lower division courses which will enable them to continue their education at some four-year university or college. Already we have marked an increase in teaching in engineering education. Our freshman classes at Bakersfield College in the year 1952-53 in engineering were considerably larger than were the classes for the preceding year. There is a great demand for young men especially educated in the field of engineering. That demand will not be satisfied for a number of years to come and Bakersfield College will do its part in providing the first two years of training in this very essential field. The pre-professional work for medicine, law, teaching, and other long term educational programs will continue to be important offerings at Bakersfield College.

The unique service which the community college can give in pre-professional instruction is a flexible program adjustable to the changing needs of the professions.

Additional facilities on a new campus, especially designed to meet the needs of the changing pattern of high school education, may make it possible for Bakersfield College to do a better job in the future than it has been privileged to do in the past. Bakersfield College has maintained an enviable reputation in the past and with a campus of its own, and more extensive facilities there is every reason to believe that Bakersfield College will do a continued excellent job in a wider variety of instructional areas.

The Students Pitch In...

by DON RIGHETTI
Editor, Renegade Rip

The student executive council of Bakersfield College recently endorsed the bond issue of the Kern County Union High School and Junior College District and students are now busy in voluntary preparations for assisting in putting the bond election over.

This special bond election of the Renegade Rip has been designed to inform the students and voters of the facts and circumstances of the bond issue.

Another activity will be the sponsoring of boy-girl teams to assist voters in getting to the polls. Teams will be sent to the homes of persons desiring to vote but handicapped by the lack of transportation. While the girl remains with the children, the boy will drive the voter to the polls. Base of operations for this function will be the student lounge at 3-0391. People desiring such service are requested to call this number on the day of the election, Wednesday, January 28.

Student volunteers will also assist members of the P.T.A. in a telephone campaign to urge residents of the district to vote. Plans are now being made to call registered voters in the district.

An Illustrious Past, An Illustrious Future

by Miss Margaret Levinson, Dean of Women, Bakersfield College and Duane Spilsbury, Adviser, Renegade Rip

Bakersfield College this year looks back on nearly 40 years of service to the people of Kern County. Founded in 1913, Bakersfield shares with one other school the distinction of being the oldest junior college in continuous operation in California.

From its modest beginnings as a one-year adjunct to the Kern County Union High School, Bakersfield College has grown steadily. In 1916 a second year was added. In 1937, the college’s offices and many of the classrooms were moved to the south wing of what became known as the Junior College Building. There they remained until displaced by this summer’s earthquakes. Today, the offices are located in the offices of a former lumber yard and the crowded classrooms are scattered throughout the campus jointly shared by Bakersfield High School and the college.

Since its founding, Bakersfield has had three directors. Paul Vande Vek, a leading editor and writer in the field of physical science, supervised the beginning years. Miss Grace V. Bird, who was named “Dean” of the college in 1921, guided the college through 29 years of steady growth and development. Under her direction, a full program of guidance and student personnel counseling was instituted at Bakersfield College. Purpose of this department is the two-fold program of determining the students’ capabilities and ambitions and then guiding them into the proper training for a sound vocational future.

Dr. Ralph Prator, who became president of Bakersfield College in 1950, has supervised the important expansion of the extended day educational program at Bakersfield College, to afford adults throughout the district an opportunity to further their college-level education. Under Dr. Prator’s leadership, Bakersfield College is today taking on the true meaning of the term “Community College,” an institution dedicated to meeting the total educational needs of the area it serves. At this time a program of general education or education for life is being instituted at Bakersfield. Simultaneously, community surveys are being made to determine the future vocational and cultural requirements of the district.

College and University administrators rate Bakersfield College among the top two-year institutions in the state. The college now looks back on an illustrious past, and, the people willing, may soon look upon an even more illustrious future.
