Mills College Chaplain Will Speak On 'Seeing' at BC Convocation

Dr. "George Hedley, chaplain and professor of economics at Mills college, will speak on "Seeing" at the 7th BC convocation Dec. 5, in Harvey Auditorium.

Dr. Hedley was born at Tientsin, China, and was educated in China, England, and the United States. He taught at the College of Puget Sound, Pacific School of Religion, Hartford Theological Seminary, and has been at Mills since 1939.

Hedley has written several books such as "The Christian Heritage in America," which won the silver medal at the Commonwealth club of California, and "Christian Worship," "Sight and Meaning," and "One's Christian World." He is also a member of the Religious Book Club selection. His forthcoming work, "The Minister Behind the Scenes," will be out this coming February.

The convocations are held during the year to unite the faculty and students in considering the ultimate of living, according to Mr. Donald Ernst. Convocations were begun at Bakersfield College three years ago.

Life With Commercials

Our scene opens as a well-fed, well-dressed couple sits eating in a restaurant, with her well-mannered, well-dressed family. Then she turns to the man and asks, "Look at my (ugly) face!" in a tone of exasperation, things reinforced by a little nudge. "If they’d brush their teeth after every meal, any telephone would do," she continues with a knowing smile, "but they can’t (who can)? We just HAVE to use Glenn tooth paste, the coldest, the least expensive, the most effective!" Might be, she’s right, but do they HAVE to use Glenn’s? these a few! Isn’t this a free country after all? What’s wrong with dental floss? Maybe the woman has an ulterior motive, though. Maybe she’s being paid to say it. At any rate, such a monopoly should be allowed to buy the tooth paste. West the pastes, yes, but buy the tooth paste, no!

"A vital part of our country’s defense is the eyes and ears of civilians in the Civil Observer Corps," declared A. J. George-Gerling, on one of his visits to the Bakersfield County Observer post to help Orient volunteers with their work and refresh. After serving 160 hours, each wing, and after 210 hours of service for a certificate plus a medal at an awards meeting.

Although the post strives, fairly, around the clock vigilance, few obtain this end. Among these are Ken County sit—on the Bakersfield and Wasco post. The first volunteer is awarded a pair of the GOCC post is located on the roof of the Hotel Third, at 11th and H streets.

The caption under the photo: "Thanks, Bakersfield Observer Corps'"额度, U.S. General Headquarters, 250 feet, it is necessary to have a 15-hour-the corps is responsible for the important aspects of the "code of the Observer Corps," stated J. M. Gerling.

He added that recruiting volunteers is one of the biggest problems of the corps, because people don’t realize the importance of this work.

The corps is a community project, supported by the Air Force Observer Corps operations of the Air Defense Command. It is quite possible that the Command could not function without the aid of the GOCC.

Many of the members volunteer through service clubs and organizations. The only requirement for the work is that the person be able to accept responsibility. The job consists of watching for planes that are identified and notifying the Air Force which lines are identified and notified of the GOCC.
