Soph Dance Slated for October 22

"Footiling Flirt" is the theme for the Sophomore Dance this year at the Student Center. The dance, which will be held in the same place the AIA dance was held last year, promises to be as exciting. The music will be supplied by the violinist, Kevin Smestad, and the drummer, Dennis Dunn. Stargazer will disguise the dance floor with beautiful flowers and tinsel. The music will be supplied by the Sophomore Dance Band, which will give a little acting in keeping with the theme.

One of the Best

One of America's greatest entertainers, played at Balboa Stadium last Friday—completely unannounced.

Edie Adams, the world's greatest baritone star, had the audience in his first 15 minutes of luscious and thrilling music. The audience gave her a standing ovation. Adams then proceeded to sing a variety of songs from old standards to the latest. She is known for her beautiful baritone voice and her ability to make every song she sings sound like a new one.

Class Makes Architectural Study of Local Churches

Reno, Nevada — Students of Bishop Manogue's art department are presently examining the architecture of some of the area's most prominent churches, with the aim of creating a series of watercolor renderings of the buildings. This project, led by art teacher Mr. Donald Fredrick, is the latest in a series of local art projects undertaken by the school's art department.

Study of Mary's Shrine

"We have no opportunity as students to study as a first hand through old and new, man's man," said one of the students. Fredrick commented, "This project allows us to appreciate the artistry and historical significance of these churches."

Choir Elects Al Alexander

The Bishop Manogue Choir, directed by Al Alexander, held its annual elections last week. Al Alexander, who is also the choir director, was re-elected to his position.

Photographer Wanted

Any student interested in working as a photographer for Bishop Manogue's yearbook is encouraged to contact Mr. Fredrick. This is a great opportunity to gain valuable photography experience.

When Coach Jack Bowerman’s youthful UCLA Bruins went to Berkeley Saturday, head fans will get their first chance to see the Bruins’ boy licensing squad. The outnumbered players faced a three-up, two-down spread a couple of weeks ago, when they handled the habituated California style. Now it’s a little easier to tell who’s doing what in the Bruins’ offense; Coach Knute Rockne says they have had three weeks of preparation for this coming contest. The Bruins, however, are not the only threat. The Cal defense is weak, so the Bruins have a good chance of scoring.

Ybanez Leads Teammates to Victory

Performance Establishes New Record

by Frank Bodell

Ybanez was leading his teammates to victory in the distance running event. He had just completed a grueling race and was now being congratulated by his coach and teammates. Ybanez was wearing a red shirt and blue shorts, and his face was covered in sweat. His eyes were closed and his mouth was open, indicating that he had just completed a difficult race.

Moments to Remember

The New Year's Eve we did the town.

by Ed Brown

El Rosarito evidently had a hectic streak in that Saturday night because that's just what a group of their natives, feeling the decision in the game itself was not sufficient, attempted to do. The resulting opposition from a group with the Benjamin Bond at its nucleus, caused a noisy and that proved one of the highlights of the evening.

No, that good-egg story certainly didn't reflect the spirit of the evening. There were plenty of interesting things happening both on the field and off to make attendance worthwhile.

In addition to the "ten", which resulted in the sudden resignation of the stadium, there were other sorts of the Strauss, the native, the bandleader, the players here and there. At one point, with the roses left on its own 10-yard line, the seating section was led in a rousing rendition of "When It's Springtime in California", and topping it off, with El Rosarito in possession of a 1 and 10, the players answered, "Block that kick!" Unfortunately, though, the Gadses didn't seem quite ready to go into safety position.

Oh, yes. The football team was crowned, too, to the stunning strains of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic", while the presentation was drowned out by a plea for the Olympic flag.

There was an event, however, which exposed any possible skittishness of the human: the boiling and ridiculing of the young disabled mascot by El Rosarito natives. There was no comment, understandable enough to apply in this case, but surely El Rosarito will never be forgotten for the group of drunken beasts they sent here to represent their school. Much of this goes to show that despite a seemingly undeserved contest, the spirit of Bakersfield College is still high, though at times a little rigidified. A scene the locally justified a little caution.

Enthusiastic Newshawks Handle Rip's Routines

The Rip staff, consisting of 30 people, is made up of students who have an eye and ear for journalism. Courses are offered for credit, but several on the staff contribute to the Rip without the credits.

Jim Denman, the editor-in-chief, who publishes the school and Variety Beat, directs the general policy of the paper.

Managing editor Genie Girard does the front page layout and makes assignments, and "flapjacks" Marlene Girard, a journalism major, comes from Delano.

Gray Gill is serving his second year on the page, and Girard will take the page for the editors. Besides this, she is director of activities.

Among the reporters for the Rip is the freshman class president, Gary Halston. Gary has various, editorial positions on the staff, including editor of the staff newspaper.

Clifford Groff, former managing editor, is now a reporter. Clark McGinnis, former sports editor, and reporter, and Marilyn Valentine, freshman class president, are also reporters. There are even two former students working on the paper. Everyone, from the editor-in-chief, who was reprimanded, to the reporter, must show his, or her, ability to work on space, time, and never be late for school. Everyone is basically a reporter, and everyone who works on the paper.

At any time, at any hour, the staff is ready to meet the challenge. During their time at school, the staff is ready to work, to think, to be creative, to be original, and to try new things. Everyone is ready to show his, or her, ability to work on space, time, and never be late for school. Everyone is basically a reporter, and everyone who works on the paper.

On the Deadline

Rip reporters Linda Parish and Morris Kline do some last-minute typing to meet that always threatening deadline.

The Renegade Rip Illustrated

Rip News Story was just like the rest of the story family. He began his life, at least on one day, morning and from that stage of his infancy, he grew to a height of seven inches. He was small at first but the large of his life, which was in the small city of his school, was the large of his life. He grew in size, and with the growth of his size, his appearance came to be noticed.

At this early age Rip was put in a box, and when the box was opened, he was put on the floor. Then it was sent to the future book on Sunday by a person called "Rip's relatives."

Rip has a Rest

Following a short lay in the reporter's box, Rip was removed from the page and put under the care of the reporter.

Rip's relatives, who had been waiting for his return, were pleased to see him again. They were happy to have him back, and they were happy to have him back on his own space.
