"Alpha Gamma Sigma Lists 119 BC Cites Eligible"

A total of 119 students qualified last semester for Alpha Gamma Sigma, Bakersfield College affiliate of the California Junior College Scholarship Honor Society. This is the largest number of eligible students that we have had," said the statement of Dr. John Young, advisor. "Of course it represents an increase in the enrollment and all who are eligible aren't active members until they pay their dues," Young added.

A student may win temporary membership for a single semester in the organization by compiling a 3.0 grade point average in 12 or more units other than physical education while making a total of 30 grade points with a C average or better.

Meeting Today

The first meeting of the club today in JC 111 fourth period, will be held for the purpose of electing new officers and to make an announcement about RCateur pictures.

Price Gilgitter, representing the office of relations of schools at the University of California, will be at BC March 5 to talk to students who are interested in transferring to a UC campus. Mr. Gilgitter will hold his conference in JC 117 at 11.

"The Sophomore Class, Newman Club, and Rally Club will leave for a snow party at Greenhorn this Sunday morning at 9 from the BC campus. Approximately 30 members have signed up for the trip.

The Sophomore Class held a special meeting last week and decided to hold its regular meetings every Thursday evening instead of during fourth period Thursday.

"Introductory Applied Physics" book written by College engineering instructors, Ed. Hemmertime, and Norman Harris, recently hit the high sales mark of 5,600 copies sold.

The book, written primarily for the technical student, has had wide acceptance among liberal arts students as well.

For the first time in the history of the Bakersfield College choir an all-male staff of officers will lead the group.

Elected to office were: Roy Ives, president, Chuck Nelson, vice-president, Jim Lester, secretary; Bob Banks, treasurer; Lanning Warren, manager; and Leroy Tillery, assistant manager.

Nine new members were initiated into Lance and Shield, women's service organization, last Thursday. The tea party for new members and alumni of the group is in the planning stage, according to Lu Ann Tidrow, newly elected president.

Interest in Art Helps Frosh Shun Handicap

By Wanda Furrh

"I don't appreciate art enough," says Wanda Furrh, BC frosh, who is interested in art. "I have a basic knowledge, but I don't appreciate it." Wanda, however, enjoys visiting art museums, looking at paintings, and having anything to do with art.

Wanda, who has a favorable attitude toward art, believes that art can be enjoyed by anyone. "It's really a matter of personal preference," she says. "Some people like painting, while others enjoy sculpture. Art is not limited to any specific group of people.

Wanda plans to continue her involvement in art-related activities. She is planning to take a course in art history at the University of Notre Dame next semester, and she is considering enrolling in a painting class at the local community center.

Wanda's love for art started when she was a child. "I remember sitting on the floor with my mother, looking at different paintings and discussing their meanings," she says. "That's when I realized that art could be so much more than just a decoration to a room.

Wanda hopes to share her love for art with others. She plans to hold art parties with her friends, where they can hang paintings and discuss their meanings.

Wanda's enthusiasm for art is evident in her daily life. She often spends her free time exploring art museums and galleries, and she is planning to take a trip to New York City to see the famous art museums there.

Wanda's involvement in art-related activities is a testament to her dedication to appreciating and sharing the beauty of art.
Generous Loans Offer 'Instillation Education'

"Education should be considered the most important single factor that will make your junior year passable," stated Miss Margaret Levenson, assistant nurse in the medical center.

Yet people think nothing of going from one year to another without being in school. They are not even interested in education. The reason is that education is not really important. It is not considered a real education unless it is obtained in a college or university.

However, the majority of the problems that are faced by the students are not related to the lack of knowledge. The real problem is the lack of motivation to learn. It is not important to learn if you do not want to.

For instance, there are many students who are not interested in learning because they do not see the value in it. They think that learning is a waste of time and that they should be spending their time doing something more enjoyable.

This is not true. Learning is not a waste of time. It is a way to improve your life and to get better jobs. It is also a way to meet new people and to make new friends.

So, if you want to get the most out of your junior year, you should try to learn as much as possible. You should try to be interested in the things that you are learning.

The more interested you are, the more you will learn. The more you learn, the better your chances of getting a good job.

If you are not interested in learning, you should try to find something that you are interested in. You should try to find something that you enjoy doing.

There are many ways to do this. You can try to find a part-time job that you enjoy. You can try to find a club that you enjoy. You can try to find a class that you enjoy.

The more interested you are, the more you will learn. The more you learn, the better your chances of getting a good job.

So, if you want to get the most out of your junior year, you should try to learn as much as possible. You should try to be interested in the things that you are learning.

The more interested you are, the more you will learn. The more you learn, the better your chances of getting a good job.
Coffee Break with the Staff

by Marilyn Valentin

The time is 7:37 a.m. Your first class starts at 8. You turn over in bed and think—"It's time to go class. You get out of bed and immediately turn on the television set just in time to hear the professor say, "Good morning, students.""

Great Idea

This may seem like a little facetious to teachers and students who consider it beneath their dignity to be disturbed by students, but 9th-grade students will find that the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades are a little more relaxed than the 9th. These students will be the first to admit that they have a lot of homework, but they will also admit that they have a lot of freedom. The 10th-grade students will find that they have a lot of homework, but they will also find that they have a lot of freedom. The 11th-grade students will find that they have a lot of homework, but they will also find that they have a lot of freedom. The 12th-grade students will find that they have a lot of homework, but they will also find that they have a lot of freedom.

Credit Received

The first year of TV lessons will be on an open court to which 10th-grade students are invited. The course will be taught by Mr. John Smith, a former student of the regularly general education curriculum in first and second-year college students.

BIG MOVE WON'T RID BC OF PROBLEMS

Editorial

BC will leave behind it many major problems when it moves to the new campus, but these remain which will continue to cause friction between faculty and students.

First is the complete absence of consilience in the question of academic and regraded curricula, with some teachers opposing academic appointments and others not, and recognized students for one type of extra-curricular activity while not for another.

Second is the shortage of money for textbook and class materials. This problem is caused by the fact that faculty members are not always able to keep their students informed of new developments because they are a few months late from an assembly which ran overtime.

The third major problem is the absence of any section revising faculty work, a tradition which used to give the students a chance to review the week before final without being forced to join down.

Additional material at the last minute, and one in which faculty cooperation is essential.

All these are symptoms of a decided lack of understanding and finish work between the faculty, on one side, and students and their activities on the other. Students meet, the faculty meets, but never together in one body, and here lies the solution.

Bakersfield High School has found it to its Campus Athletic Committees. Every two weeks, a representative group of students and teachers meets to discuss and decide the problems that affect and decide them. It gives both sides a chance to bring out the open their unwavering grievances and has gone a long way to ease faculty and student body from two armed camps into a common body with common goals.

We're sure that there are common goals at BC too, and that these goals might best be met by establishing just such a committee to work toward them.

It wouldn't solve everything, of course, there'll always be gripes. But it would help to provide better communication and to solve the problems that will continue to plague us, new campus in all.

Grades Aid Student Point Out Progress

Grade: What do they mean to you?

Grades are a tool for measuring the amount of work done in a course. They are used by teachers to evaluate the performance of students.

One authority defines grades as the recognition of achievement in a subject by the assignment of marks. Also, grades are used by the student as an indication of his progress.

Most teachers grade students on an alphabetical scale, but some use a numerical system to grade students.

Women tend to rank boys lower than girls and teachers give men lower grades than women. Men tend to rank women lower than men. There is no scientific method that can be used to rank students.

Most teachers grade students on a curve, which means that the grades are based on the performance of the students in the class. Some teachers use a pass-fail system, which means that students either pass or fail the course.

Four-Year College for Kern?
Teacher Shortage Rises While Enrollments Climb

by Linda Parker

On the eve of the new school year, California is facing a critical teacher shortage. In the 1950s, the number of qualified teachers in the state more than doubled. However, by the 1960s, the supply of qualified teachers began to decline. In fact, by 1960, the number of teachers with professional credentials had decreased by nearly 50 percent. This shortage is expected to worsen in the coming years, as the number of students continues to increase.

The shortage of qualified teachers is particularly acute in urban areas, where demand for educators is highest. In Los Angeles County, for example, the number of teachers with professional credentials has declined by nearly 30 percent in the past decade. As a result, many schools are forced to hire unqualified teachers, or rely on temporary substitutes.

California is not alone in facing this problem. Across the country, states are struggling to fill teacher vacancies. The problem is especially acute in rural areas, where the supply of qualified teachers is already limited. In some states, the shortage of qualified teachers is so severe that schools are forced to hire teachers who are not certified.

The shortage of qualified teachers is a serious concern, as it affects the quality of education that students receive. Research has shown that students who are taught by qualified teachers perform better on standardized tests and have higher graduation rates.

The shortage of qualified teachers is also a significant economic problem. In 2016, the National Education Association estimated that the shortage of qualified teachers cost the U.S. economy $2.4 billion in lost productivity.

California is taking steps to address the shortage of qualified teachers. In 2016, the state legislature passed a bill that provides $1 billion in funding to support teacher recruitment and retention.

However, many experts argue that these efforts are not enough. In order to attract and retain qualified teachers, states must offer competitive salaries and benefits, as well as support for professional development.

The shortage of qualified teachers is a complex problem, but it is one that must be addressed if we are to ensure that all students have access to a high-quality education.

West" is being planned. It is expected that construction will start in the near future. The project is a joint effort between the university and the local community. The new campus will serve as a hub for education and research, providing a modern and comprehensive learning environment.

Under Construction

Although BC students will occupy their new home April 2, all work will not be completed. The library building, shown above, is one of several still to be finished.

BC Admires Campus
But More Yet to Come

Several important structures, including the library building, are scheduled to be completed by June 1 of this year. The library building will be the largest and most impressive structure on the new campus. It will be a hub for learning and research, providing students with access to a vast collection of books and resources.

Sitting high on the hillside overlooking the 66-acre campus site—fields on one side and Grantor Bakersfield on the other, the most BC campus scenes areiore inspiring than any other. Student and under construction terms, with wide corridors, red brick fronts, and other features of the new campus site will be beautified as they are on the old in the background, the Bakersfield College campus will be one of the largest and most beautiful in the state. At Bakersfield College today, students were talking about their new campus, located at the foot of Chino Grade, just a short distance from the old campus. Students were discussing their first impressions of the new campus and the changes they expected in their college experience.

Thirty Extra Minutes

BC student John Stone seems elated over the fact that he'll be able to work on his extra credit during the spring term. Stone, a sophomore in the Business Administration building, said that his extra credit will be a relief to his family, who have been waiting for him to graduate.

Bus System

Of the several new buildings that will be completed next year, the BC library is reported to be the most popular. The new building will house the majority of the school's books and provide a quiet study area for students. The library will also have a large open area for group study and a reading room for individual study.

Parking

Parking is another concern that students have expressed. With the new campus, there will be more open spaces available for parking. Some students have suggested the possibility of a parking garage to be built on the side of the hill, which would provide more parking spaces.

Eating

One question that has bothered students at BC is the question of food. The new cafeteria will be located on the first floor of one of the new buildings and will provide a variety of food options for students.

Other Accommodations

Accommodations for physical education classes will be adequate. The new gymnasium will be large enough to accommodate all classes. The new economics building will house all classes for the proceeding term, and the new library will provide a quiet study area.

Check of School History Reveals Slow, Steady Growth to Maturity

Frequently, Bakersfield College will be featured or reviewed in the local press, as it should be. The college is a leader in the state, and its achievements are well known. However, there are many who may be unaware that Bakersfield College has evolved from a small rural junior college to a large urban comprehensive institution.

In the early days of the college, the curriculum was focused on practical skills and vocational training. The college was established in 1932 with an enrollment of 19 students and a faculty of six. By 1940, the college had grown to 200 students and 20 faculty members. In the 1950s, the college began to offer more academic courses and expanded its facilities.

In 1960, the college celebrated its 30th anniversary and had an enrollment of 2,000 students. Today, the college serves over 10,000 students and offers a wide range of academic programs. The college has also become a leader in community education and workforce development.

In the past 50 years, Bakersfield College has undergone significant changes and growth. The college has expanded its facilities, added new programs, and become an important part of the local community. The college continues to be a leader in providing educational opportunities for the people of Kern County.

A Four-Year College In Kern's Future?

A Rip Special Report
by Jim Overman, Rip Editor

A four-year college for Bakersfield? Nor until 1967, at least, according to Dr. Ralph Prator, BC president.

Bakersfield College officials have made a four-year college for BC a three-year goal. They hope to have one to BC students by fall of 1967, according to BC's vice-president, Frank H. Heilman.

The first alternative is blocked by a very clear state law which states that no parent college district may extend its curriculum beyond the 12th-grade (vocational only). Thus, there is no legal way in which BC itself could become a four-year institution.

The second, second in Heilman's plan is that a new state college would be established within the Bakersfield area. If a new state college is established, BC would become a junior college, supporting BC.

No Legal Way

Fresno Plans

Plans are now being made to have Fresno State upper division teaching courses offered here. If so, that is the best indication that BC is on the way to becoming a four-year college.

Wilbur's Poem Is Published

"Meditations on a Horse" was the title by which Leslie Wilbur, BC English instructor, experienced with English instructors. Wilbur's poem, which has been accepted as a college English publication, will be published in the "College English" magazine. This publication is also the official English-speaking English teacher's publication.

Grid Account Wins First

Editor's note: Don Morgan, Rip sports reporter, was first place for sports stories at UIC's Newspaper Day with the story of the East Bakersfield College El Camino football team. His story, in part, follows:

In a game reminiscent of the days of the flying-wing and driver, the Bakersfield College Renegades and the El Camino Warriors battled to a scoreless tie Saturday in memorial Stadium.

The game was a real tussle in the modern era of pass-and-pass to score four or five touchdowns a game.

Neither team was able to deal the other's offensive formations and only when an attempted field goal by the Renegades' Ross Evans from El Camino's four-yard line went wide did the huge throng realize that the game was of some kind might occur.

The warrians didn't even quite get started after being their starting quarterback, Jerry Nicholson, for the first play from scrimmage, and had only a mild threat to the Gate goal line late in the fourth quarter. When the Warriors, down from their 27-yard line to the Gate 27, before third-string quarterback Phil Shephard, fumbled the ball to Doug Collins, BC state.

One of the few highlights of the evening was a punt by El Camino's second-string fullback Dick DeAngelo. DeAngelo, playing in his first game of college football, booted the penguin some 65 yards in the air from the base of scoring. The ball fell to the left of the 23-yard line to become an out kick and until all else was done it was kept all.

His other effort went a hefty 87 yards.

In a campus-wide survey of Academy Award nominations, BC students have picked the best actors. The winners were Warren Beatty in "Bonnie and Clyde," which won best picture and best director. The second place went to "El Cid" and Jack Lemmon and the supporting actress was Betsy Blair. The movie that was picked as "Fiddler" and winning a close second was "Time." The survey was taken before the presentations last night. How right were you?
