At least we have the opportunity to test our lives in the knowledge that we have started a healthy, humble, democratic tradition of building. Our students can now realize that the life they lead is the life they want to live, and that if they continue, they can control it. Thus they are able to make the most of their lives, and they are grateful for the chance they have been given.

The main idea of the Collegetown renovation is that it should give people a chance to control their lives. If they can make a living in the same way they can live, they will be able to control their lives.

HULL OF A NOTE

By MIKE MILLER

"One of the best things about being a student at Renegade is the freedom to explore and try new things without the constraints of the real world," said one student.

A group of students decided to visit a local botanical garden and were amazed by the variety of plants and flowers they encountered. "It was like stepping into another world," said another.

As they wandered through the garden, they noticed a small pond with a water lily blooming beautifully. "It was like a painting," exclaimed one student, "I could hardly believe my eyes!"

The group continued on their walk, taking in the sights and smells of the garden. "It was like a dream," said one, "I felt so peaceful and content.

The students decided to conclude their visit with a picnic lunch, enjoying sandwiches and fruit under the shade of a large oak tree. "It was like a fairy tale," said one, "I felt like I was in a storybook.

As they packed up to leave, they couldn't help but feel grateful for the opportunity to escape their usual routine and experience something new. "It was like a breath of fresh air," said one, "I feel rejuvenated and inspired.

In the end, the students left the garden with a newfound appreciation for nature and the beauty it can bring into our lives. "It was like a gift," said one, "I'll treasure this memory for a lifetime.

MALES TURN TO BERMUDAS FOR COLLEGIATE WEAR

"I've always found that the best way to express my personality is through my wardrobe," said one male student."I love to wear bermudas because they're so comfortable and versatile. I can wear them with a T-shirt and sandals for a casual day, or dress them up with a button-down shirt and dress shoes for a more formal event. Plus, they come in so many styles and colors, it's like a never-ending supply of wardrobe options!"

"But it's not just about the comfort and style," said another. "It's also about the culture. There's something about bermudas that just scream 'college' to me.""It's like a bonding experience, going to the beach or the lakeside and feeling that everyone's just as relaxed as you are. It's a great way to unwind and have some fun with your friends."

Despite the growing trend, some students are still hesitant to embrace the bermuda trend. "I think it's a little too casual for my taste," said one. "I like to keep it more formal and professional.""But I've been seeing more and more people wearing them, and I think it's time to join in," said another. "It's like a rite of passage, becoming a part of the college culture."

"Whether you're into it or not, bermudas are here to stay," said one. "So why not give them a chance?"
