Renegades Need Win at Ela-Tomorrow

Officials Decide on Title Ties, Grid Play

by Jim Dean

When the Renegades and Ela-Burlington met last week for the final bout of the Round Robin Conference, one of the games was actually decided on the basis of a tie score of 14-14. This tie game, the third of the night, gave the Renegades the championship in the conference and their fourth win in the Round Robin. The tie game also gave Ela-Burlington the championship in the conference and their fourth win in the Round Robin. The tie game also gave Ela-Burlington the championship in the conference and their fourth win in the Round Robin.

It was decided that there would be three ties in the conference, with both teams receiving one point for each tie game. This tie game will be awarded to each team for their efforts in the game and will be added to their Round Robin scores.

Prior to the opening game, however, there was a lot of talk about the possibility of a tie game. The game was to be played on a one-on-one basis, with the winner of the tie game to be decided by a coin toss. This decision was made to ensure that the tie game would be decided by the best team.

New Grid Rules Problems—Newman

by Jim Deon

"Yes, I was a little shocked and a little concerned, too. It’s not good to see players doing that, but if that’s the only way to win then I suppose we’ll have to do it."

This, in part, expresses the feeling of Renegade Football Coach Roy Newman concerning the Metropoli tan Conference’s decision to bring back two additional football for the next season.

"It’s going to cause a real problem," states Newman. "With the new grid rules, you tend to pick out just a specific type of football (offense—defense) and forget the others. So we’ll have to change our thinking, but others will go both ways and it’s hard to say how it’ll unfold.

By adopting the double-platoon system, the conference has thus dropped the Iowa plan of grid rules which has been in effect for more than a year. It seems like we won’t be preparing the players for four-year

"It’s going to be a change, but the big thing is how it will affect our offense and defense."

The conference has decided to stick with the "no sub plans," the outside "three out of the five in the city would be expected to defend in a Renegade game."

If the same result, however, as it is called, it’s just a co cal grid system, it would normally be required to at tend school all year, and, if it is located in the area, it would be a Renegade college, and the team would be a Renegade team.
