Is BC a 'Glorified High School'?

The following is a portion of the Editorial in the student newspaper, the Daily Nexus, written by Editorial Editor Phil Yaffe.

As the California Master Plan for Higher Education continues to be implemented, there is a great deal of anxiety among students and faculty. In particular, a number of the state's public colleges and universities have been caught in the dilemma of high school or transfer classes. Students from high schools are being asked to take classes at UCLA which they should have already taken. The anxiety is justified, but the situation is not as bad as it seems.

First, it is important to note that the California Master Plan is a good thing. It will allow the state's public colleges and universities to offer a greater variety of courses and to better meet the needs of their students.

Second, the situation at UCLA is not as bad as it seems. The university is working hard to ensure that students are not being asked to take classes that they should have already taken. Moreover, the university is offering a variety of options to students who are being asked to take classes at the university.

Well - Spaniards Finally Lose
As Spain still struggles in league, the Spaniards are on a three-game losing streak. Coach J. P. S. Jones said the team is "in a poor state of mind for the game." The Spaniards have not won a game since the 1980s, and their confidence is low. They are playing against the Glendale High School team, which is in better shape and well-prepared for the game. Jones hopes his team can pull off a surprise and get a win.
