In Case of Emergency—See Television Series

With the threat of vandalism hanging over our heads every day, it is often wonder what happens when a person would want to do a good deed. It is not often that we come across people who are willing to help others.

In this case, we have a student at my school who is always looking for ways to help others. He recently went out of his way to make sure that an emergency situation was handled properly. Although he was not directly involved, he took the initiative to ensure that the situation was taken care of.

This student has been a great asset to our community, and his actions have inspired many others to do the same. We should all strive to be like him and make a positive impact on the world around us.

Relay Decides COS, BC Swimming Meet

The Southern California Relays at the University of Southern California was held recently on the Schedule for the bakerfield College swimming team, and by using the relay events, they found that the Gaades do not have enough swimmers to carry the weight in individual events. Last year, when they had the opportunity to see the relay events, they felt the experience gained by participating helped them to do better in the meet worthwhile.

Yesterday, the BC splasher halted the Cal State College-Victoria, but results were not available at press time. Tuesday, the Gaades opened their season against COS, and lost a close 50-43 decision that was decided in the day's final event, the sprint relay.

The Gaades At Mayo was the only dual meet of the week between the 200 and the 500 yard freestyle events. These are both new school events. In the 200 yard freestyle event, the Gaades took third in that event for BC.

Next Monday will be the first game for the league, and the girls will be interested in playing bowling for averages to determine handicap.
