Three Vie For ASB Presidency

Bowser Heads Ballot; Manson, O'Brien Follow

By YELLA WHITE

The runoff election for Senate and Freedom also positioned selling buttons which advantage peace, freedom and liberal thought because of strong opposition on campuses by members of various campus clubs who say such buttons would create a bad impression of BC.

Bowser, an AVI officer, has worked as a member of a Wage Labor Negotiation Board, listing his platform on re-examining wages and benefits. He also said it would be a "narrow, liberal government, which is under 50," no matter what you have held can put forth the image that BC deserves.

Second on the ballot, Bruce Manson, who hopes to "energize the whole student government," was one of five delegates from the college, in the audience at the Michigan leadership conference. Previous elections on the Student Senate, 42, Manson has attended Board of Representatives, and also served as parliamentarian to the Freshman Class.

John O'Brien served last semester as the club president and was elected to the office of Freshman vice-president this semester. The young man was able to receive his office because of a large majority. For the first time during the conference, he asked for the names of 20 members on the Activities Board, which includes Area 3 Conference, Programming Affairs, and Assessment Affairs.

O'Brien also said he would like to see a table reserved for the Veterans Club at the bac. He also said that the college should be able to have a table on campus because many members felt they might force a bad impression on high school seniors as to what the college looks like.

Dave Reeds, a member of the CPP, argued that the club should have equal rights as a club to sell buttons, calendars, or any other thing they choose to sell.

"A suggestion," he said, "is that the college turns it over to the club, and it is decided by the club.

"I think people on this campus, particularly those who oppose the CPP, should grow up and realize that this college campus is an independent, separate place where the students are 18 years old and up-the boys are all draft age. It's not people speaking on their minds a little," said Edwards.

'Odipus the King' Uses New Setting

The BC Drama Department's last production, Odipus the King, will run May 15, 16, and 17. The play will be done in a somewhat different setting and setting, according to Henry Horwage, director.

"It won't be done in the classical Greek style for which Sopho- ces wrote the play; the setting will be more modern," Horwage said.

According to Horwage, the play "Odipus, the King," houses a God of the old people and an old man, but no "Beowulf, a young man who will be a hawk given to rock-and- roll, take it back to the city, communication, and the student," Horwage said.

"We're trying to emphasize the universality of the play," he said. Rabbi Chapman will do the design for the play, and Susan Day, the costume designer.

"To establish this ancient man's pronouncing all the proper names in ancient Greek," Horwage explained, and added, "We're doing this because we surprised but they'll accept it.

"Odipus will be performed in the outdoor theatre, and Horwage said the only problem we're facing with it is performing out-of-doors is voice projection. But he added that all the students in the cast have strong voices-and that this should be strong.

The cast will include: Dan Lef- bow, as Odipus, and as his wife's mother, Sylvia Ruggiero. Other members will be Larry Peterson, Bob Blackmore, Fred Smith, Pete Kersten, Mike McCune, Gary Woodford, Harry Black, Dean Sexton, Teri Hudson, Sue Barton, Bill Morrow, Karen Cas, Linda Gold, Allen Knorr, Tom Hugnart and Judy Latham.

College Atmosphere?

It seems that Activities Board, scheduled to be completely revamped next year, will nonetheless continue to make their advisory decisions for the rest of this semester.

Last week, they decided, but after much discussion (unusual for them), to grant the Committee for Peace and Freedom the use of the lower to sell buttons and stickers.

However, OPP felt that the opposition from the board was so strong that they had to keep the day for BC Day, and those opposing the sale, among them Koye, blew the whistle. This was a major win for OPP, and OPP's lack of respect for the board was no surprise. OPP felt that it was the right move to take, especially as the board was trying to limit their freedom of expression and freedom of association. OPP was confident that they would prevail in the end.

Leaping Intentions

Due to the massive, last-minute, Activities Board's failure to realize that they were defeating one of the primary reasons OPP was formed, OPP was able to leap into the lead at the last minute of the day.

BC Day was revamped this year so the students would be better able to express their concern about the day's average day. OPP was confident that they would be successful.

By causing the postponement of OPP's sale of buttons, Activities Board was effectively prevented from realizing their goals. OPP's strategy was effective, and they were able to make one wonder whether the board members are really realistic with college students.

Rip's Endorsement

Other clubs and organizations on campus have endorsed their candidates. As a campus organization, and also to perform the duties of a responsible newspaper, the Rip now offers its endorsement.

Our endorsement for AAS President is Bruce Masood. Masood is presently president of the Freshman Council, and has enabled him to become familiar with many other student government members. He has also taken Political Science 42, which required all student government, and one which is basic to the demands of AAS President.

A main plank in Masood's platform is the official recognition and expansion of the Freshman Project. Although the Freshman Project is one of the noblest organizations at BC to date, it suffers from lack of expansion. Placing more emphasis on the program, as Masood advocates, would not only benefit BC, but also those unfortunate children who members of the program exist.

To serve as Masood's Vice President, we endorse David Brooks. Brooks is presently President of the Young Republicans, and was instrumental in coordinating both nominating conventions this year.

Our endorsement for Chief Justice of the Student Council is Nick Boardager. Boardager has served this past semester as President of the court, and displayed sound judgment, something which the court could use more of.

For the office of Sophomore Class President, we have no endorsement.

Jacobs' Speech Raises Eyebrows

By Mike Phillips

After representing a group of opponents to the upcoming campus elections in a speech to the sophomore class, Jacobs has received mixed reactions. The audience was divided, with some applauding his passionate delivery and others expressing their disagreement. Jacobs, who has been involved in various campus activities, has always been known for his fiery speeches. However, this particular speech has raised eyebrows among some students and faculty members.

"I am speaking today to bring attention to an important issue," Jacobs began. "The upcoming campus elections are a critical moment for our community. Students have a voice, and it's up to us to use it wisely.

"Many of you may be thinking, 'What does this have to do with me?'" Jacobs continued. "But I assure you, the decisions made in this election will impact all of us. It's important that we participate and make our voices heard.

"I urge you to consider the candidates carefully. Don't base your decision solely on their promises or past actions. Look beyond the表面 glamour and ask questions. We need leaders who will listen to our concerns and work towards solutions that benefit us all.

"Why should we support one candidate over another? What makes them qualified to hold such positions? How will they address our concerns? These are the questions we should be asking ourselves.

"I believe that the students of this campus deserve a voice in the decision-making process. It's time to take back control of our future. Let's not remain silent; let's make our voices heard in these upcoming elections.

"I encourage you to cast your vote, but more importantly, I encourage you to be informed. Stay engaged, stay active, and together, we can make a difference.

"Thank you for listening to my impassioned words today. It's my hope that we can work towards a better future for all of us.

"Thank you."
Activities Board Members Question Role and Motives

In the spring of this year, the AB members include: Linda Décena, Barbara Houser, and the newly-elected president, Michael Davenport. All members are expected to be active and enthusiastic, and to serve their students fairly and impartially.

Coach Optimistic As New Football Training Begins

By JOHN GRAHAM

I was quite surprised because I have never seen a football training session before. Coach Bill Smith announced that the team would begin training next Monday. He said the team would meet at 6:30 a.m. in the stadium and stay until 9 a.m. The coaches and players will then take a break and return to the stadium at 10 a.m. for another practice session. This will continue until the end of the season.

The team will practice hard to prepare for the upcoming season. The coaches will focus on improving the players' skills and strategy. The players will work on their individual strengths and weaknesses. The team will also work on their teamwork and communication. The coaches will give them feedback on their performance and help them improve.

The team will also participate in various games and tournaments to gain experience and improve their skills. They will also compete against other teams to test their abilities. The coaches will provide constant guidance and support to the players.

Overall, the team is optimistic about the upcoming season. They are ready to work hard and give their best to achieve success. The coaches are confident that the team can perform well and achieve their goals.

Boswell, who teaches biology, said that he will be giving the presentation at the school's science fair. The fair is scheduled for next week, and Boswell will be displaying his experiments and results.

Boswell has been preparing for the fair for several weeks and has been working on a project that will demonstrate the importance of environmental sustainability. His project involves creating a model of a sustainable city that includes renewable energy sources such as solar and wind power. He plans to use this model to educate students about the benefits of living in a sustainable community.

Boswell's project is one of many that will be showcased at the science fair. Other projects include a solar-powered car, a wind turbine, and a water filtration system. The fair is open to all students in grades 7-12, and they are encouraged to bring their own projects to share with others.

The science fair is expected to be a fun and educational event, and it will provide an opportunity for students to learn about the importance of science and technology in our world. Boswell is excited to be a part of it and looks forward to sharing his project with others.

Manson Voted New President

Higbee, Cook Win Runoffs

The students of Chico State elected new leaders to represent them. Manson was elected as the new president, while Higbee and Cook were re-elected as the new vice presidents.

Manson, a senior in business administration, campaigned on the promise of improving campus life and addressing the needs of students. He promised to work towards making the university a more inclusive and diverse place.

Higbee, a junior in political science, was re-elected as the new vice president of student affairs. She plans to focus on improving the student experience at Chico State and enhancing the resources available to students.

Cook, a senior in psychology, was re-elected as the new vice president of academic affairs. He will work to promote academic excellence and support student success.

The elections were held on Tuesday afternoon, and the results were announced later that day. Many students attended the election day events and cast their votes.

Elaine, a sophomore in communication studies, was thrilled to see her classmates voting. She said, "I think it's important for students to get involved in their university and to help shape the future of Chico State."
Editorial

Infringement of Rights

It was decided at the last Campus Advisory Committee meeting that there should be a "Spade Park" type of organized activity at the campus to provide students the opportunity of expressing opinions. Several areas were suggested.

The patio between the bookstore and the Campus Center, the triangle area of grass in front of Campus Center, the area in front of the Halls, and the walk-in front of the Art building were all suggested. It was narrowed down to the first two, primarily because their proximity to Campus Center would promote a "Spade Park" type of activity.

As a result of their suggestions, the CAC felt this area would impose on the students who congregate there just for relaxation.

However, if the consensus of a speaker would be improving upon the campus, then it must be assured that Reader's Theatre performances also infringe upon those students in the Campus Center to the degree of harassment, and it does. Although it can be argued that Reader's Theatre is culturally redeeming, which it is, it can also be argued that a Reader's Theatre performance would theoretically be culturally redeeming also.

Anyone attending a Reader's Theatre performance can recognize for himself that although there is usually an attention circle audience, there are just as many students who are concerned only with their conversations. Thus, while Reader's Theatre may benefit the interested, interested student, and that student may enjoy the performance, it still encroaches upon the nonconcerned student. It is usually assumed that students go to Campus Center looking for a "recharge" from the intellectual pursuit.

For a more effective performance, and also to assure against infringement upon rights of culturally uninterested students, it would seem more beneficial to have Reader's Theatre perform in a different location.

The Student Lounge or Library should consider a possible suggestion is that in the event the "Spade Park" situation is consented to by the Board of Trustees, the area designated as such also be used by Reader's Theatre.

Many students have expressed their opinions on the ASB dance policy. For example, in the ASB, some students have expressed their feelings on the matter.

Many students feel that the policy is too strict and should not be used at all. They feel that the policy should be relaxed in order to accommodate more students.

On the other hand, some students feel that the policy is necessary to ensure a safe and enjoyable environment for all attendees.

For the time being, the ASB proposed the VASCH. However, Krause emphasized that ASB and VASCH did not enter Krause. However, a recommendation was made that ASB and VASCH find a way to improve the program.

Editorial

Just One Too Many

The Credibility Gap, the latest publication at BC, appeared in the Campus Center Foyer last week—without the sanction of the Board of Publications.

It seems ironic that a club interested in initiating a publication in this case the Young Democratic Club—would be so ignorant of regulations governing them. All publications at BC come under the jurisdiction of the Board of Publications, and therefore must be approved by it.

Members of the club include Dan Robinson, an Associate Justice of student court, and Tony Garcia, a member of the Rip staff and next year's Vice President of the club, both of which should be familiar with publication guidelines.

The publication itself will fill no void at BC, and would only flood the market should it continue. Preble, published by Young Republicans, Rip, published by Committee for Peace and Freedom, and The Weng Observer, are all approved publications and provide a spectrum of thought that would only be broadened by the addition of another publication.

By bypassing the proper channels, the Young Democratic Club only jeopardized the possibility of their publication's success.

Good-Byes

Sometimes it is not so tough to say goodbye. There are many who do not say goodbye, as personal or institutional commitments, and so on. Thoughts that very, maybe if EV does not a little differently, none of these things could have been predicted.

One of the most frequently ignored groups among trendsetting members of our generation is the Vietnam War. You have heard the words "Viet Nam," "Viet Cong," "Hanoi," "Hue," and "Saigon," and are very conscious of the fact that one can read or hear about war without ever actually being involved in it. If we do not allow ourselves to be involved in the war, we cannot allow ourselves to be involved in the war in its entirety.

Among Tomorrow's Best

Led by a fabulous array of international stars from Albin Hancock of Sweden and Brazil's Fernando's No. 1 and 2 singles fencers at Modesto for the state meet.
At always the competition is to be held in conjunction with the Modesto Relays.

Hammered defending chamions will again be favored. This Santa Maria group is headed up by Neil Diggan, a 26-year old distance runner from England who won the 800, mile and two mile events last year. Joe Kasimov, who came to Barkerfield from the defending champ in the discus.

Squads with an outside chance are Pullerton and Los Angeles City College from the Southern section and Fresno City from the Northen.

Those who qualified from Ba-kfelder, are Steve Wilson in the 10000-meter run and Ray McGill in the middle distances.

Wilson won the Southern section contest with a meet record of 1:58:10, breaking his own school mark of 1:58:5 and the ten year old meet record set by Bennings from Compton in 1957.
His chief worries at the State will be Palomar Coll and two other Northern section boys who have waited the platter beyond

McGill, who has a lifetime of 4:48.00, placed fourth at San Diego Meet in San Diego with a new meet record of 4:35:10, becoming the new meet mark in the 2 mile with a school record of Football is in the air and seems destined to remain so for a long, long time. Barkerfield is no exception. The Barkerfield football program has always been a vital part of the school. In Barkerfield's history the only sports that have equaled foot ball's place in the school are basketball and track.

This is due to the high quality of the Barkerfield athletes and the dedication of their coaches.

The Barkerfield football team
fielded a full team this season and made the most of their time on the field. They were a team of hard workers who did not shirk their responsibilities on the field. They were a team of leaders who set the pace for the other players to follow.

The Barkerfield football team is a team of hard workers who have earned the respect of the school and the community.
