'68 Summer Session Termed Diversified

By Ralph Nielsen
Dr. H. Parley Kibbura, Dean of the Evening Division and Summer Sessions at Bakersfield College since 1964, expects the 1968 session to be the most diversified yet offered to students.

Since 1954 the summer session has graduated from 200 to 1000 students every year, according to Dr. Kibbura. He anticipates an enrollment of over 2000 students for the current session. Due to the steady increase in student interest, there is an ever-increasing demand for more and different classes than offered in the previous summer.

Because of this demand, Kibbura lists several notable features of the diverse session offered this year. They include: French I, a special seminar for advanced students, child development, journalism I and II, basic news reporting and photography, writing, metals, welding, and psychology. The seminar for advanced students makes microscope activity a regular part of the course work for these students who emphasize skills and techniques of working with children.

Other courses offered include: the standard summer course in major accounting, art, social science, physical science, literature, math, business, and English.

Kibbura welcomes comments from the individual students. "We have always found the summer student quite as enthusiastic. We welcome any suggestions he might have. The enrollment is open every Monday and Friday evening. If any help is needed, don't hesitate to come in. We hope this will be the best summer session yet," he stated.

Finlinson Cites Objectives for Summer Students

A Greeting from the new president of Bakersfield College:

This summer 1968 to 1969 students will be enrolled in Bakersfield College. Each summer this number increases. This fact gives support to the belief that school facilities should be fully used for the welfare of the people.

To new students summer session is an early opportunity to learn, first hand, the nature and demands of college life. To some, summer session is a chance to advance in a current program; to others, it is a way to make up for lost time or to clear some disciplinary offenses. To others, it is a time to attend one or several courses.

What ever your objective, I hope each one of you will perform well, achieve a high degree of excellence, and thusmake the summer session beneficial to you.

President Burr J. Finlinson

Sen. Stimm Lauds BC for Nurse Training Program

The sources of Bakersfield College's nursing program is leading the way for other junior colleges, Senator Walter Stein, said recently at the 17th Annual BC Nurses Pinning Ceremony.

He also said that most of the nurses graduating from the BC program stay in the Bakersfield area.

He pointed out that the community's needs doubly not only by giving nurses, but nurses with fine training and exceptionally high standards.

In paying tribute to the nurses from BC, he pointed out that the money earned in nursing is not great, the compensation in human values makes passing a most rewarding profession. He also complimented the class for their work in the field.

The senator also encouraged the nurses to pursue further academic training that would qualify them to teach in their field.

Introduced by Dr. Edward J. Schreiner, BC faculty, the text of BC, "A graduate, rated BC, a graduate," stated that the BC faculty is communal college in California in commutative service.
BC Renegades Chalk Up Impressive 68 Season

By Jerry Henry

This year, as in the past, Bakersfield College—although many other BC sports were close wins—showed their spirit of the national BC football conference. This year’s City College, last year’s Potato Bowl entry, was the first to be invited to the annual "Big Bakersfield" stemmetle 5-7. Then came San Diego and the "Coach of the Week" award given to BC when the BC Bearcats took a 1-1 part in the final. This was followed by the second win against the Long Beach State team. The team of the nation as they downed three to one with a 3-0 victory.

FOOTBALL

The Renegade gridiron rocked this year with a new head coach, Ray (The Greek) Collo, the Cinderella of the nation, after an earlier run that had ended their quest of the national BC football conference.

Expanded Journalism Courses Offer New Staff Members Training

By Kathy Weaver

Final revisions in the journalism curriculum are being completed and interested students are encouraged to attend the new program, according to William W. Walker, Rip and Rear advisor.

Eight Courses Offered

The courses have been "expanded, somewhat," be stated. They are new seven journalism courses in addition to one photo-journalism course.

Journalists, 1, required of all Rip staff members, stresses collecting and editing news. Journalists 2 features, advanced news writing. Journalists 4, the first in the series, stresses writing and editing fiction.

Journalists 3, also a 3-credit course, will concentrate on unity of news in public relations.

An introductory to mass communication will be covered in Journalism 5, while the 2-credit Journalism 2 will stress involvement in the social sciences.

search in the field of Journalism 1A. New courses for editors of student publications are also being offered. These courses will stress news layout and "advice." Journalism 1B teaches yearbook and handbook publication.

"Favorable" Teen News Tops Stories of Wrong-Doings

"Newspaper's prime role of the bad things about kids but they never mention the good things that teenagers do." True or false?

To either prove or disprove this long-standing complaint once and for all, several newspaper researchers have recently investigated the volume of "favorable v. unfavorable" stories about teenagers. Following are summaries of their findings:

In the South Bend (Ind.) Tribune, "favorable" material about teenagers was found in 33 of 11 in number of stories, 553 to 63 in columns inches and 28 to 9 in pictures.

In San Rafael (Calif.) the Independent Journal published 216 favorable stories, 50 unfavorable stories over a one-month period.

Also over a full month the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald's table of favorable vs. unfavorable was "too close to call". It was printed on a special slip. The layout was to be taken with an eye of press and a magnifying glass to see if it was a legend. The editor was to be taken with an eye of press and a magnifying glass to see if it was a legend. The editor was to be taken with an eye of press and a magnifying glass to see if it was a legend.

In other words, all of these newspapers were printing far more stories about teenagers' "good works" with billions of dollars than "bad deeds".

Why? Then, does the complaint about low news print? A University of Texas research team asked this question several years ago and found that teenagers themselves seemed to prefer the bad news. Specific details as to why teenagers were asked how likely they would to read two stories, one headlined "High School Student Arrested Last Night," the other headlined "High School Student Given Award." The latter story drew more interest from the writer and was more "favored" than the former.

Simmons Hails BC Bond Act As Start of New Era

Pottage of the James College Corporation Bond Act at the June 4 election marks the beginning of a new era for public schools in California, according to Dr. LeRoy S. Sutcliell, president of the college.

Since junior colleges comprise the largest segment of higher education in California and are unique, qualified to provide services to their communities, passage of the bond act of 1968 will great local impact, said Dr. Simmons.

"Simmons, now a university, for which the San Joaquin District will be eligible will benefit students in Bakersfield through an expanded program for an added college and a new science complex at Poinsettia College. The long-discussed possibility of a college in the Ridgecrest area will now become a reality.
