New BC Judiciary
Lewis, Chambers Head
ASB Officers

by

Brian Lewis

for the Spring Semester of the ASB

James Chambers

Bakersfield College is offering a new creative writing course designed for students interested in writing for the media, according to CHS, Chair of the Communication Department.

The Writing Course, which meets Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30, is part of the Bakersfield College curriculum. The course is open to all students, regardless of their major.

The course will focus on developing the student's writing skills and helping them to explore the possibilities of creative writing.

The course will be taught by Dr. Roderick, a well-known writer and critic in the field of creative writing.

The course will cover a variety of topics, including the creative writing process, the importance of structure and pacing, and the techniques of character development.

The course will also include guest lectures from prominent writers and critics in the field of creative writing.

The course will culminate in a final project, which will be a short story or a novel.

The course is open to all students, regardless of their major, and will meet Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30.

BC Band Presents
Winter Concert

For the first time in several years, the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band will present a winter concert. According to Dr. Alan Brown, the director of the band, the concert will feature a wide variety of music, including music by classical composers and contemporary composers.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM. The concert will feature a program of music by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Symphonie Fantastique.

The concert will be free and open to the public. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the performance.

The concert will be conducted by Dr. Alan Brown, who has been the director of the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band for several years.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM.

The concert will feature a program of music by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Symphonie Fantastique.

The concert will be free and open to the public. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the performance.

The concert will be conducted by Dr. Alan Brown, who has been the director of the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band for several years.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM.

Pro Writing Course
Is Now Offered

by

Mark Armstrong

Bakersfield College is offering a new creative writing course designed for students interested in writing for the media, according to CHS, Chair of the Communication Department.

The Writing Course, which meets Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30, is part of the Bakersfield College curriculum. The course is open to all students, regardless of their major.

The course will focus on developing the student's writing skills and helping them to explore the possibilities of creative writing.

The course will also include guest lectures from prominent writers and critics in the field of creative writing.

The course will culminate in a final project, which will be a short story or a novel.

The course is open to all students, regardless of their major, and will meet Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30.

BC Band Presents
Winter Concert

For the first time in several years, the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band will present a winter concert. According to Dr. Alan Brown, the director of the band, the concert will feature a wide variety of music, including music by classical composers and contemporary composers.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM. The concert will feature a program of music by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Symphonie Fantastique.

The concert will be free and open to the public. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the performance.

The concert will be conducted by Dr. Alan Brown, who has been the director of the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band for several years.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM.

Pro Writing Course
Is Now Offered

by

Mark Armstrong

Bakersfield College is offering a new creative writing course designed for students interested in writing for the media, according to CHS, Chair of the Communication Department.

The Writing Course, which meets Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30, is part of the Bakersfield College curriculum. The course is open to all students, regardless of their major.

The course will focus on developing the student's writing skills and helping them to explore the possibilities of creative writing.

The course will also include guest lectures from prominent writers and critics in the field of creative writing.

The course will culminate in a final project, which will be a short story or a novel.

The course is open to all students, regardless of their major, and will meet Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30.

BC Band Presents
Winter Concert

For the first time in several years, the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band will present a winter concert. According to Dr. Alan Brown, the director of the band, the concert will feature a wide variety of music, including music by classical composers and contemporary composers.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM. The concert will feature a program of music by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Symphonie Fantastique.

The concert will be free and open to the public. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the performance.

The concert will be conducted by Dr. Alan Brown, who has been the director of the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band for several years.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM.

Pro Writing Course
Is Now Offered

by

Mark Armstrong

Bakersfield College is offering a new creative writing course designed for students interested in writing for the media, according to CHS, Chair of the Communication Department.

The Writing Course, which meets Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30, is part of the Bakersfield College curriculum. The course is open to all students, regardless of their major.

The course will focus on developing the student's writing skills and helping them to explore the possibilities of creative writing.

The course will also include guest lectures from prominent writers and critics in the field of creative writing.

The course will culminate in a final project, which will be a short story or a novel.

The course is open to all students, regardless of their major, and will meet Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30.

BC Band Presents
Winter Concert

For the first time in several years, the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band will present a winter concert. According to Dr. Alan Brown, the director of the band, the concert will feature a wide variety of music, including music by classical composers and contemporary composers.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM. The concert will feature a program of music by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Symphonie Fantastique.

The concert will be free and open to the public. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the performance.

The concert will be conducted by Dr. Alan Brown, who has been the director of the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band for several years.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM.

Pro Writing Course
Is Now Offered

by

Mark Armstrong

Bakersfield College is offering a new creative writing course designed for students interested in writing for the media, according to CHS, Chair of the Communication Department.

The Writing Course, which meets Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30, is part of the Bakersfield College curriculum. The course is open to all students, regardless of their major.

The course will focus on developing the student's writing skills and helping them to explore the possibilities of creative writing.

The course will also include guest lectures from prominent writers and critics in the field of creative writing.

The course will culminate in a final project, which will be a short story or a novel.

The course is open to all students, regardless of their major, and will meet Monday through Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30.

BC Band Presents
Winter Concert

For the first time in several years, the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band will present a winter concert. According to Dr. Alan Brown, the director of the band, the concert will feature a wide variety of music, including music by classical composers and contemporary composers.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM. The concert will feature a program of music by composers such as Beethoven, Brahms, and Symphonie Fantastique.

The concert will be free and open to the public. Students are encouraged to attend and participate in the performance.

The concert will be conducted by Dr. Alan Brown, who has been the director of the Bakersfield College Orchestral Band for several years.

The concert will be held in the Bakersfield College Performing Arts Center on Friday, December 20, at 7:30 PM.
RUN NIGGER
CAUGHT IN THE SQUEEZE

Students got the squeeze

RIP OFF

New ASB Government Foster Ideas

Multiple-book Survey

Multiple-book Survey

PATCH THE HOLE

Former BC'ite Earns Ph.D.

Student Government Hy C. Taylor

Pepsi's got a lot to give

Your complete record and stereo tape headquarters
PROBLEMS PILING UP ON PUTZENREUTER

BY PERCY LEEMIS
Sports Editor

When Lafayette angling coach Bud Johnsol received the telegram, he told himself: "This can't happen. Bud's just not that good a swimmer." But then, 17 years later, here he was at last, winless in his 102nd consecutive race.

Johnsol has a good story, but he hasn't been able to meet the standards of swimming excellence that Putzenreuter set in his head. "This is the way it was, but I am wanted, but we're not getting him near the mark." Johnsol's observation is both to be of state next year, and the gold standard for the second consecutive season to swim to the limit next year, after breaking in during the final portion of last spring.

Putzenreuter can't remember the last time BC lost to Santa Monica. He now expects his 7-2 home win in the game after a week off, compared with the second consecutive season to swim to the limit next year, after breaking in during the final portion of last spring.

Fresno, who has backed up green with records in both the Fresno Trips and the league, has only entered three races, and has as yet no one to equal the previous season's marks. Fresno's 2-1-0 record is the same as before.

Ever since he has been in the business, Tom Qisi, the enforcer in the state, has held against the previous season's mark. Fresno has held its steady progress mild enough for its effectiveness in the Fortune next few weeks.

"The first time," Putzenreuter says, reaching back, "I was 21-2-2 and it was 3-1-0. I was third, and not in the state. But it was my week and I was playing the way the league played. I was just right.

"I remember what my brother, Ted, said: 'Putzenreuter, I'm out of the league this year.'"

The race was held against the previous season's mark. Fresno has held its steady progress mild enough for its effectiveness in the Fortune next few weeks.

"The first time," Putzenreuter says, reaching back, "I was 21-2-2 and it was 3-1-0. I was third, and not in the state. But it was my week and I was playing the way the league played. I was just right.

"I remember what my brother, Ted, said: ‘Putzenreuter, I’m out of the league this year.’"

The race was held against the previous season's mark. Fresno has held its steady progress mild enough for its effectiveness in the Fortune next few weeks.

"I remember what my brother, Ted, said: ‘Putzenreuter, I’m out of the league this year.’"