No state play-offs: BC loses, 80-71

Any hopes BC had of becoming the state basketball champion went up in smoke Wednesday night as the Grizzlies were defeated by Long Beach, 80-71, in the L.A. Valley Gym. The two squads had ended the regular season in a tie for the Metro crown, so the playoff was needed to decide the league's representative in the state playoffs. BC was behind by as much as ten points in the contest, and ended its season with a 21-8 overall record.

The estimated 15000 in the arena at the time cheered the Grizzlies on with a thunderous "Let's Go Grizzlies" chant as the game was going on. The first few fouls were called, but some of the Grizzlies' key men were given the chance to get into the game.

Food Service Director Roger Johnson said, "This season was the first year that the food service was on its own. We were able to improve and make the food service better."

No one was more pleased with the results than BC President, who added, "The improvement in food service is a positive step forward for BC."

The BC food service team was successful in their efforts to improve the quality and variety of meals offered to students.

John Johnson brings experience to food services

By JOHN ESPARZA

John Johnson has joined the BC food service team, bringing with him over 20 years of experience in the food service industry.

Johnson, who attended the University of Washington, is currently working on his master's degree in business administration.

The position will be an important part of the BC food service program.

Previously, a food service company employee, Johnson had worked for a major food service provider, helping to manage their largest campus dining hall.

"I'm excited to bring my experience to BC and help develop a strong food service program for our students," Johnson said.

In addition to his experience, Johnson has a strong commitment to community service, having volunteered at local food banks and served on the board of directors of the Food Bank of Western Washington.

Johnson explained that, as in previous positions, his goal is to establish a strong student-focused facilities program that will provide quality meals and excellent service.

Johnson also mentioned that a key aspect of the role will be to ensure the program's sustainability, which will be achieved through strategic planning and cost-effective operations.

With the addition of Johnson to the BC food service team, students can look forward to a more diverse and enjoyable dining experience.

Johnson will join BC's food service team immediately and begin working on developing the program's overall vision and strategic plan.

"I'm looking forward to working with the BC team and creating a dynamic program that meets the needs of our students and staff," Johnson said.

In summary, John Johnson brings a wealth of experience and a commitment to quality and community service to the BC food service team. His expertise and dedication will undoubtedly contribute to the success of the program, providing students with a positive and enjoyable dining experience.
Boycott on irrelevant issue

For the past two years the BC student newspaper, the Student Life, has been one of the few publications in the country to adapt to the growing needs of the student body. The Student Life, like other publications, is in the business of providing its readers with accurate and timely information. When we publish an opinion piece, we do so with the understanding that it will be read and considered by our readers. But when we publish a piece that is based on misinformation, it can harm the reputation of the publication and the credibility of the authors.

Support and criticism of the boycott are two sides of the same issue. The student body is divided, and it is difficult to determine which side is right. But it is clear that the Boycott has been successful in mobilizing support. The Boycott is not just a protest against the Israel-Palestine conflict, but also a protest against the failure of the United Nations to resolve the conflict.

MEChA defends BC cafeteria boycott and responds to last week's opinions

Dear Editor:

I read with interest your editorial supporting the BC cafeteria boycott. As a member of MEChA, the Multicultural and Ethnic Students' Association, I would like to address some of the points you raised in your editorial.

Firstly, you mention the need for unity among students. We agree that unity is important, but we believe that the boycott is essential to protect the rights of workers and to support the farm workers' struggle.

Secondly, you state that the boycott is not effective. We believe that the boycott is effective in raising awareness about the working conditions of farm workers and in putting pressure on the University to improve these conditions.

In conclusion, we believe that the boycott is a necessary action to support the farm workers' struggle. We urge all students to support the boycott and to demand better working conditions for farm workers.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

Attorney calls for 'Image Ads' regulations to be set by FTC

In a surprising move, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has called for regulations to be set by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) for 'Image Ads.' The move comes after a number of companies were accused of using images in their advertising that did not accurately reflect the product being sold. The FTC has said that it will begin to look into the issue and will make a decision on how to regulate 'Image Ads' in the near future.

Board of Reps: conflicting views

The Board of Representatives has been at odds over the past few weeks, with members on both sides of the issue. BC’s initial Metropolitan Conference basketball victory is proving elusive. Mike Jackson, sophomore, now 0-2 and possibly exciting newcomer Michael Kinnard5 into a 4-1-1 team in defending Metro League in Los Angeles Valley. The Ruby Di’s diamond record 6-9. BC managed 10 hits off stubborn left-handed Rios. Six runs scored hits-make attempts, in their defense in the ninth and so no 3-2 victory emerged.
