Nava speaks on Mexico, opportunity

By WALTER STORMONT

A.N.A. Editor-in-Chief

At last Tuesday's general staff meeting in the Indoor Theater, Chancellor John Garrett, President of the Cal State Polytechnic University in Pomona, addressed the student body. Nava addressed the student body of the United States and, therefore, Nava has been involved more about the history of this Mexican nation.

"Navca on behalf of the Social Science and International Studies Department introduced by Master of Ceremonies Chuck Garrett, Chairmen of the Social Science and International Studies Department who said that the last two decades have been one of the "better known names in California for the last two decades: for not only political involvement, but also because of his excellence on a scholar, and because of his commitment in Civic Affairs as a member of the Los Angeles City School Board.

Nava's opening statement, he stated that there is a great variety of educational institutions in the United States to better meet the better known names in Mexico. The United States and Mexico differ from each other for the lack of foreign language classes.

"The United States and Mexico is third in the United States to teach Spanish," Nava said. Therefore he said we can see Mexico and realize that it is of great importance to the United States. Mexico's Government differs from Mexico's in several ways, Nava explained. The poverty of Mexico is more severe than the poverty of the United States and Mexico has more authority.

"The President of Mexico has far more authority than any President of the United States ever had." Language causes a communication problem between the two countries, Nava said. The United States, Nava emphasized. That's why, according to Nava, President Carter "decided to send someone to Mexico for a change who knew how to speak Spanish.

Nava suggested that we all need to know more about Mexico. The Senate of Mexico is the seat of dignity is stronger in Mexico than in the United States.

"There is, in Mexico," Nava said, "despite its diversity, an ever growing desire for unity. The United States and Mexico are one nation, and each of us has the chance to get involved. You have an opportunity to help make our country great." He said, "you get involved. You have a chance to participate and be proud of your own country."

The Marine Corps provides lots of entertainment in ’80

By TONY LACAVA
Sports Editor

Up through the second week of just this recruiting season, you can see a sign in what seems to be a very small box. It says: "Marine Corp barracks, call 050-8000 for spec- tacles." It’s a good deal for the Corps because they have something to offer that’s kind of challenge, and you have an opportunity to get in on the action. The few who are interested in the Marine Corps will find that they have a chance to become a part of something really special.

The Few. The Proud.

If the Marine Corps sounds like your kind of challenge, and you have an opportunity to get in on the action, you can contact the nearest Marine Corps Recruiting Office and ask to speak to a Recruiter. They will be able to provide you with information about the Marine Corps and what it can offer you. They will also be able to help you determine if the Marine Corps is the right choice for you.

The idea behind the "Sea Trials" program is to give you a chance to test your skills, faster promotions, and a $3000 bonus program. Maybe you can be one of us...

Renegore promises plenty of surprises!

By FRED W. CLUSER Staff Writer

If you're tired of the same old Halloween, check out what's going on at the Bakersfield College Indoor Theatre this week. That's right, it's Renegore time again.

Over 30 actors and technicians have once again put their ideas together and restricted another haunted house that has become somewhat of a tradition on the BC campus. Between Oct. 22 and 31, the BC College Players will scare the daylight out of anyone who dares to enter the speak house.

The scare sessions are scheduled to begin every evening at 7 p.m. and end 90 minutes before the last show of 1 a.m. A donation is needed. A $5 donation will be given to anyone who enters the scare houses for recycling.

"It's going to be real exciting. There's more scary things we have ever used before," said Renegore advisor Hank Webb.

"We have real good special effects and enough good performers to complement the fear. This year is going to be the first time," he said.

Included in a masterfully laid out production are many new innovations, planned to give the house a frightful feeling. Covering the entire theatre stage, a conveyor belt could be stuck in the house for quite some time.

Activities fee discussion planned

J-o-h-n M-i-l-l-s spells ambition

By WALTER STORMONT Student Writer

The Student's Activities Fee Program is being revived this year, with the effort of D. C. Hunter, dean of student activities.

The BC Students at Community College is a cooperative effort of the BC Student Government and the BC College Players to provide students with dramatic experiences in conjunction with BC College activities.

The program is open to all BC students and will give priority to freshmen. Each student is eligible for a discount card to be used to register for any BC College sponsored events for the current academic year.

Included in the improvements are a new feature, half of a dozen, a ghost-winner, and an idea which includes some un ­collectible special effects, and a brand new scenario, plus the usual Frankenstein and surprises.

Overall, 22 members and a good support staff make Renegore a big rival of Scream City in the dark, a popular Halloween speak house in Bakersfield over the last few years.

"We feel we have better special effects than they do. We are the Dark side," remarked Webb.

"I'm really looking forward to it," said freshman Debbie Graham, a member of the production. "It's going to be a lot of fun!"

A separate course is planned for the 25th, sponsored by KEXX, which will hand out prizes for the best costumers.

"It's going to be a lot of fun," said Webb. "The idea is inspired by a few ideas. We have read materials from local costume shops, seminars and college offices, and we have decided to do this."

"If anyone has a good idea, they can come forward," said Webb. "It's going to be a lot of fun if we all come forward."

The program will be presented in the BC College Indoor Theatre next month.

Bakersfield must plan

By DAVE PERRY

The Bakersfield College Board of Trustees is to be commended for its recent decision to address the problem of traffic congestion on the main campus.

The Board has taken a step in the right direction by allocating funds for the construction of a new parking garage. This is a necessary step to alleviate the congestion that has been caused by the increase in student enrollment.

However, this is only the beginning of the solution. The Board must also consider alternative transportation options, such as shuttle services or bike lanes, to further reduce congestion.

In conclusion, the Board's decision is a positive step, but more must be done to solve this ongoing problem. The safety and convenience of students and employees depend on it.

By WALTER S. WRIGHT, Editor-in-Chief

Addressing a student meeting this month, American Libertarian candidate for Senate Jim Cato spoke about his political views, including the need for a voluntary military service program.

Clarke said that he believes that the current system of conscription is outdated and that a voluntary approach would be more effective. He also discussed his support for the abolition of the Federal Reserve System.

Clarke believes that the Libertarian approach to national defense is based on a principle of non-aggression, which he believes is a more realistic approach to international relations.

A new era has dawned at L.A. Pierce. This school's women's tennis program, which was formed last year, has blossomed under the coaching of Linda Crawford. In her first year, Crawford has led the Renegades to a perfect 4-0 record. This is the first time in the school's history that the women's tennis team has gone undefeated.

Crawford, who was recently hired as the women's tennis coach, is a former member of the L.A. Pierce women's tennis team. She is known for her coaches and has a wealth of experience in the sport.

The Renegades' success is due to a combination of hard work and dedication. Crawford places a strong emphasis on practice and conditioning. She encourages her players to push themselves and work hard to improve their skills.

In addition to the tennis team, Crawford has also helped to form a women's basketball team. This group is also making strides towards success. The women's basketball team has a 3-1 record so far this season.

Crawford's hiring was a major milestone for the school. L.A. Pierce has long been known for its academic excellence, but this is the first time that the school has had a women's tennis team. Crawford's success is a testament to the school's commitment to providing opportunities for all students.

Crawford's background as a former tennis player has given her a unique perspective when it comes to coaching. She understands the importance of technique and strategy, and she is able to provide valuable guidance to her players.

Crawford's experience has also helped to mentor younger players. She is able to share her knowledge and expertise with her players, helping them to reach their full potential.

With Crawford at the helm, the Renegades have a bright future ahead of them. Crawford's leadership and guidance will undoubtedly be instrumental in the team's continued success.

Evaluating the future of KCCD's programs and services, according to the district's chief executive officer, will be a difficult task for the college's president and his team. According to John Motz, the district's executive officer, the future of KCCD's programs and services is uncertain, with cuts potentially affecting all aspects of the college's operations.

Motz said that the college is currently working to identify areas where cuts could be made, but that the final decision will be made by the college's board of trustees. He added that the college is looking into the possibility of eliminating certain programs and services, as well as reducing the number of staff members.

Motz emphasized the importance of maintaining a strong presence in the community and providing quality education to students. He noted that the college is committed to providing a high-quality education to all students, regardless of their background or financial situation.

Redline, a musical act that has been gaining popularity in the Bakersfield area, performed at the Taft High School auditorium on Thursday night. The crowd was enthusiastic and the energy was high, with many fans singing along to the band's hits.

Redline's performance was accompanied by a powerful light show, which added to the overall atmosphere of the event.

The band's lead singer, Grayson, revealed his passion for music early on and has been honing his skills for years. He has been a part of the Bakersfield music scene for some time and has established himself as a rising star.

Grayson's voice is both powerful and emotional, and he connects with the audience on a personal level. His stage presence is electrifying, and he has the ability to captivate an audience with his performances.

The rest of the band, including the drummer, bassist, and guitarist, are equally talented and work well together. Their music is a perfect blend of rock and roll, with catchy melodies and hooks that stick in your head.

The audience was cheering and dancing, and the energy was electric. It was a night to remember for those who were lucky enough to be there.

The proposed border wall on the southern frontier would be the primary theme of the Mexican-American heritage has been held to be true. In this context, the U.S. government has been exerting pressure on Mexico to deport illegal immigrants. However, the proposed border wall has not been met with enthusiasm by the Mexican government, who argue that it will only serve to further militarize the border and exacerbate existing tensions between the two countries. The U.S. government has been under pressure from both sides to find a solution to the immigration crisis.

Student involvement bright side of campaigns

By JOHN STOOPS

In this election year, a UC political science student can emerge from the campaign battle as a victorious candidate even though he or she loses. In fact, Fachure campaign is a means to an end, according to Steve Schilling, chairman of the Kern County Republican Central Committee, who teaches a course in political science that emphasizes the practical aspects of political campaigns.

By enrolling in the Political Science 5 course, students learn the art of campaigning. The course, which is a popular one at UC, is taught by Schilling, who has more than 20 years of experience in political campaigns.

The course covers the basics of campaign strategy, fundraising, polling, and media relations. Students are divided into teams and assigned a campaign to manage, from start to finish.

At the end of the semester, students present their campaigns to the class, and the best one is awarded a prize.

Schilling said the course is not only a practical course for students interested in politics, but it is also a great way to get involved in the community.

"It's a great way to get involved in the community and learn about the political process," Schilling said. "And it's a lot of fun."

Harrington, Turner, Top netters

BC's 113-year-old basketball program had some new players this year. If the team's players are like Jack's caricature, 21-year-old Katie Harrington is Jack's nemesis. Harrington is a 5'9" forward who is one of the tallest competitors. Turner and Harrington are the team's two stars, and they both have had a marked effect on the team's fortunes.

OFF the court, however, they're two of the pleasantest and most approachable people on campus. Turner is a junior philosophy major, and Harrington is a junior sociology major. Both also enjoy photography.

"We have a lot of fun together," Turner says. "We hang out a lot when we're not at practice. I think it's a good thing for us to be friends as well as teammates."

Harrington also enjoys sports. "I love football. Because it's so organized, you can count on it being the same every year. I love playing basketball though because it has more rules and it's faster," she says. She also loves tennis. "I've been playing tennis since I was five," she says. "I really enjoy the competition and the strategy."

Turner also enjoys sports. "I played soccer in high school," she says. "I really enjoyed the teamwork and the physical aspect of the game."
