In an effort to assist students who wish to transfer to a four-year college, BC has obtained a $175,000 three-year grant to establish a transfer center.

The center, which will be located in the Student Services building, was largely developed by the University of California and California State college systems.

According to Dr. Frank Orpin, BC dean of students, the program was implemented "to listen out some of those edges that exist with articulation, financial aid, and to assist a student in their transfer decision-making process." The center will be open to anyone, regardless of their major, who wishes to transfer to another degree-granting institution.

In addition to providing workshops and transfer fairs, the center also provides information on transferring to the city campus, including how to take the SAT or ACT, how to find a college, and how to complete the necessary steps to apply for financial aid.

The center will also be open to students who are currently enrolled in a college or university and who are looking to transfer to BC.

The center has been open for a few weeks now, and it has already seen a significant number of students. According to Dr. Orpin, "we hope to have at least 100 students come by in the next month."
