Homecoming Memories

BY LEANNE GAVE

"Moving through the Decades" was a fitting theme for Bakersfield College, which is rich in sports history and tradition, celebrated Homecoming at halftime with a procession of teams that displayed history dating back to the 1950s, pickup trucks and sports cars.

One of the participants was women's basketball player who participated in the event. The team cheered on the bleachers and displayed banners during halftime.

Canada will offer library, lab services

BY YUKI UTSONOMIYA
Staff Writer

The Bakersfield College GADES student identification card will be replaced by a new, cyberbank card starting today.

The new card will offer services all on one card, including a library card to check out books or print, a student identification card and a credit card for the computer labs in the computer commons, Career Center, Learning Center and Allied Health building.

"One of the things this card has is a microprocessor built into the card itself," said Tom Bohan, director of cyberbank services.

"It also has a chip card, which is the same as the current card. The card is only to be used when the card is in use," he said.

Boman explained that in the future, the card may be used at the bookstore to purchase books or at the cafeteria to purchase food. The card will be required for students to attend those events and bring old price cards. Students also need to bring additional cards such as their old GADES card or driver's license.

Until the new card is in place, printing will be free, according to Bobo, a public relations specialist.

"We're trying to make sure that people don't have to pay for things," Bohan said.

The card goes into effect this month.

The GADES card, which is a bi-annual card, allows students to access the college's library and computer systems, Boeing said.

"These are all tied to the road things, and they're only the money-making deal that they're going to make money," Bohan said.

"One of the fun things about the GADES card is that it's going to be used by students," Bohan said.

"We definitely need to keep our eyes on Social Security," he said. "One of the questions we're going to have is: Do we think it will be there?"

"One of the things we're looking at is that it's going to be more of a financial transaction," Bohan said.

Issues define differences between the candidates

Bush advocates tax reform, educational accountability

Rep. George W. Bush, Republican of Texas and the nominee of his party for the presidency, is the only candidate running for the White House who has legislated and voted for lower tax rates.

Bush has advocated tax cuts and has backed several programs designed to improve education.

The battle will be fought over the future of the country's economy, the war on terrorism, and the direction of the educational system.

The candidates will be asked to state their positions on these issues, and the public will have the opportunity to vote for the candidate who best represents their views.

The importance of this election cannot be overstated, as it will determine the course of our nation for the next four years.

Gore plans to protect human rights, national forests, Affective Action

Socially conscious voters are looking for a candidate who champions the cause of human rights and the environment.

Gore has been a long-time advocate for international human rights, and has been a vocal critic of the Bush administration's policies.

He has also been a strong supporter of renewable energy and the protection of national forests.

By establishing a strong environmental record, Gore can appeal to voters who are concerned about the future of the planet.

Why won't the Democrats run a Republican? Why won't the Republicans run a Democrat? Why won't the Democrats run a Democrat? Why won't the Republicans run a Democrat? Why won't the Democrats run a Democrat? Why won't the Republicans run a Democrat?

There are some of the questions that more young people are asking.

Republican candidates are running in every state, but the Democratic candidates are minimalist. Why? Why won't the Democrats run a Republican? Why won't the Republicans run a Democrat?

ASBC is a major force in the Republican party. We have played a major role in supporting candidates and issues that are important to our members.

ASBC has long been a strong supporter of free enterprise, limited government, and fiscal responsibility.

ASBC is grateful to our members who have given generously to help us support candidates who share our values.

True confessions of a Mini Thins addict

By Bryan Shain

Oh, how I loved the feeling of bringing the little red bottle of Mini Thins to my mouth. The chocolatey bite, the creamy filling, the sweet and salty taste... it was all so good. I couldn't resist the temptation.

But now, I've had to face the harsh reality of being addicted to Mini Thins. It's not easy, but I know that I need to kick this habit.

Mini Thins are not just any candy bar. They are a special treat that I used to enjoy eating once in a while. But now, I'm addicted to them.

I used to eat one or two Mini Thins a day. But now, I can't seem to stop.

I know that I need to stop eating Mini Thins. It's not healthy for me.

But I just can't seem to control myself. Every time I see a Mini Thins, I just have to have one.

I'm going to try to stay away from Mini Thins. I know it's going to be hard, but I'm going to try.

I'm going to try to stay away from Mini Thins. I know it's going to be hard, but I'm going to try.

Police catch campus burglars
At about 11:35 p.m. Tuesday, Bakersfield College campus police and the Bakersfield Police Department's K-9 unit apprehended two suspects who had broken into the basketball fieldhouse. The suspects were caught due to a new road and parking lot that has been built next to the fieldhouse.

Stereo thieves strike again
On Oct. 4, a student reported that his stereo deck and amplifier were missing. He said he parked his truck in the northeast area at around 10 p.m. and when he returned at 1 a.m., he noticed the driver-side door was broken and the stereo was missing. Approximately $600 dollars worth of merchandise was stolen.

Police arrest students for marijuana
At approximately 10:20 a.m. on Oct. 6, an officer responded to a report in the southwest parking that two students were sitting in a car smoking marijuana. The two students were arrested on suspicion of possession of marijuana and some drug paraphernalia. The two students were arrested and cited.

"I don't think he could run for office there like he has since it started 60 years ago," said Anslo."I think he is generally all the American people are for when they say," if you're going to think that and it doesn't work out to be the best, then you're basically screwed from down on." Another concern that the students are high cost of gasoline. Demoralized Blocker said that the team of Bush and Dick Cheney in the opinion in oil and they be able to provide a quick resolution to the 25-year-old communications break. Bush and Cheney are stated that Democratic presidential hopeful Al Gore may be able to offer a more permanent solution that Congress could approve due to his experience in the Senate. Baden said that the budget is in trouble and the big thing, because they have special interests in the issue, it may actually become unstable again," said the 25-year-old communications break.

Cheyenne Hernández, 18, said education is the focus of her life. "It's important for students to talk about what people say from the outside. It's important for you as a student to be asking about the inside education and what the future is." Jennifer Giff, 19, a biochemistry major, agreed that education is the key, "I am not sure how important education is and what's in the future." I think education is the future," she added. "If the education isn't good, I think we're going to be in trouble," said Jennifer Giff.

"Right now our economy is OK, but it's not stable," she said, "I'm not doing as well as we were," said Anslo.
BC student complains for registration fraud

BY HENRY FRANCO Rip, Staff Writer

Bakersfield College student Christina Paulsen is one of many who feel that by taking advantage of a college opportunity, EOP&S (Extended Opportunity Programs and Services), a program that is dedicated to helping students in need, has instead taken advantage of them.

Paulsen is no longer a student in the program, but now works as a peer mentor. She says EOP&S helped her tremendously. "It's the best thing that ever happened to me," she says. "It's the program that saved me, because everyone was really close to me.

The atmosphere at the Bakersfield College Office of Geriatric Services is said to be "A+". The office provides a welcoming environment for the students, including peer mentors, counselors, and administrators who are all working on providing a positive educational atmosphere.

Working as a peer mentor has been a great experience for Paulsen. "I like the type of experience I want, because I'm learning about people. Helping students is an important part of my job.

"I can teach them about the different stages that some students are coming from. And when I'm done with an appointment, I can talk about what they've accomplished so far, and that really helped them. You can see that kind of relief come over them. It's very satisfying to see that they're 'helped somebody.'"

Some students feel that the peer mentors act more like a counselor, according to peer mentor Judy Brown. "They come to us with problems at home. They also have a lot of needs for students who are at risk.

EOP&S's director Manual Gutierrez says the program is a "unique working relationship with the Kern County District Attorney's Office." The program has been successful in preventing fraud and has even prompted some students to enroll in college to obtain a degree.

BC decides complaints against armed officers

Proposed to hire outside law enforcement agency shielded by campus officials.

BY HENRY FRANCO Rip, Staff Writer

Campus police services will not be contracted out to an outside law enforcement agency, as had previously been recommended by BC's President, Sandra Soto.

Under her proposal to the district Board of Trustees, which she discussed last spring, campus security would have been partially contracted out to an outside law enforcement agency. But the real issue for the board was whether or not to allow campus police, BC's current security force, an opportunity to carry firearms. An outside police agency would carry pass.

Soto's move also means that all campus police officers who were not invited to POST Police Officers Training and Certification Board training before July 2002.

This also meant that outside law enforcement would have to create a new campus police department. Both Bakersfield Police Department and Kern County Sheriff's Department made proposals to take over campus security.

Soto's recommendation is no longer under consideration, according to BC's police chief, Manuel Gutierrez, president of the classified union.

We have had some meetings and have decided that we are not going to contract out. We think campus officers may act better in doing the job.

California votes no on school voucher proposition

By Maria Filippa
Assistant Editor

The California ballot has made a public school voucher system impossible. Ballot Proposition 38, a $5 billion school voucher plan, was defeated by a vote of 54 percent to 46 percent on the November 7 election. The state government would have been able to take over the failing schools, which have been chosen in both rural and urban areas. Those areas are grouped in a process called "voucher schools," but a large part of the state is still a large area of low-income and minority students.

The voucher system would have allowed parents to choose any school they want, but it would have been a part of the education system that is not helpful to the students. The schools could not be funded to carry out the voucher system, and the majority of the state is still a large area of low-income and minority students.

Volleyball team sweeps Corsairs, gears up for College of the Canyons

By Richard Whipple
Staff Writer

The Bakersfield College volleyball team secured a dominant victory over the College of the Canyons in a recent match, maintaining their momentum for the upcoming season against College of the Canyons.

According to BC head volleyball coach Adrienne Zumbro, "We capitalized on our strengths and got a lot of opportunities to play our game." The BC Angels are currently ranked first in the region for women’s volleyball.

When asked about the BC Angels’ performance, Coach Zumbro stated, "We really focused on our defense and played well as a team." The Angels completed the sweep with a 3-0 win, showcasing their dominant skills and setting them up for future matches.

The Angels’ next match is against College of the Canyons, and Coach Zumbro is confident in their team’s ability to dominate against the Corsairs. BC Angels currently have a 12-4 record, making them a force to be reckoned with in the region.

Student's car rolls down bluffs
On Nov. 4 at approximately 10:30 a.m., campus police was flagged down by a student who was driving his car, which had rolled down the bluffs. The man said there was no one in the vehicle. The vehicle was a Toyota Celica registered to a BC student who was contacted.

The Bakersfield Police Department is investigating.

Police investigate athletes' fight
On Dec. 9, campus police responded to the gym regarding a fight between two football players. At approximately 11:02 a.m., campus police were called to the gym with Athletic Director Jim Snell and student-athlete. Snell said he had met the other student who was involved in his gym with some of his team mates. He tested the situation to police that the player was looking for his own in the gym. He told the student coach about the situation and the other player was placed in a separate. The student coach said that he did not want to put the player in the gym. He told police that he had met the other student who was involved in the fight.
