Teachers wage battle against board over pay

BY RACHEL CRIBBS

I was a tense moment. Bakersfield College computer science professor George Rodgers stood up during last week's board of trustees meeting and told board president John Rodgers to let him speak or arrest him for breaching.

"You have to have me arrested because I'm not leaving until everyone who wants to speak can. You will hear me," said Driver.

Rodgers, a 55-year-old former computer science professor, said he was trying to give the board his side of the story. In his opinion, the board was being unfair in its handling of a contract dispute.

"We have been fighting for the same thing for two years," said Rodgers. "I want to see the board get their act together and do the right thing." Rodgers said he was worried about the future of education and the college's students.

Students react to conflict

BY VANESSA ROTHWELL

Saying students in class is a tradition at Bakersfield College. But now students are getting around that rule.

'The only way to change the rules is to sit in class,' said student Rachel Martinez. "I am not going to stand in class because I don't want to get kicked out."

But some students say they are not going to stand in class because they don't want to get kicked out.

"You can't make us stand in class," said student Sarah Lee. "I am not going to stand in class because I don't want to get kicked out."

Columbine survivor shares faith in wake of massacre

BY BRYAN SWAN

Seventeen-year-old Heidi Johnson survived a lone gunman's attack while at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colorado last April. The shooting claimed the lives of 13 students and one teacher.

Johnson, a junior at Bakersfield College, shared her story with the Renegade Rip, the school newspaper.

"I was in the school library when I heard the shots. I thought the worst thing was going to happen," said Johnson.

Johnson said she was lucky to be alive.

"I really want to share my story with others," said Johnson.

Johnson's story is one of many that have been shared in the wake of the Columbine tragedy. Many students and teachers have shared their stories and experiences.

"I want to help others who are going through similar experiences," said Johnson.

Fans offer advice on the perfect tailgaters’ party

By Debra Sanders

Community Editor

Ever thought of attending a Heimer Club football game at Bakersfield College since the one in 1970? BC tailgaters have answered it’s a good idea, thank you, and here’s the way to do it.

For those less inclined to tailgate, here are some tips for the perfect tailgate.

1. Choose a location near the stadium
2. Bring food and drinks
3. Invite friends and family

Professional tailgaters should have a list of supplies and enjoy the game with others.

The tailgaters also explained that the most important part of tailgating is not the food or drink, but the people you are with. This is why some tailgaters choose to host parties at their homes instead of going to the stadium.

Grilled Bourbon Shrimp

A traditional BC tailgating dish, these shrimp are marinated in bourbon and grilled to perfection. This dish is a must-have for any BC tailgater.

‘The Watcher’ strangles itself on poor directing, acting

By Steven Shank

I was looking forward to ‘The Watcher’. When I stepped on a plane, I knew it was a good movie. I wasn’t interested in the plot or the characters. I was interested in the story. It’s a story about a group of people who are trying to save the city from the brink of destruction.

The movie begins with a bang. We see the opening credits and then the main title sequence. Then we see the first scene. It’s the beginning of the end. We see the city in ruins and the characters trying to make sense of what’s happening.

‘Gades defense withstands last minute comeback to ensure opening game win

If the Bakersfield College Renegades want to win a game against an opponent with better facilities and more resources, they have to be prepared. The Renegades outscored the Visalia University Cardinals, 67-60, in their season opener last Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

The Renegades’ defense was the key to their success. They held the Cardinals to just 60 points, while scoring 67 points of their own.

The game was tough, but the Renegades’ defense held strong. They allowed only 60 points, which is impressive given the Cardinals’ high-scoring offense.

ASBC holds Rock the Vote event

By Michael D. Ross

Editor-in-Chief

Sarah Jones, president of the Student Government Association at Bakersfield College, understands the importance of voting.

"It’s the right thing to do," said Jones. "I encourage everyone to vote, even if they don’t think their vote will make a difference. Every vote counts.

The Student Government Association is holding a series of Rock the Vote events throughout the semester. The first event was held last week and was attended by over 200 students.

The events will be held every Friday during the day and evening. The Student Government Association will be on hand to answer any questions and register voters.

The student government is partnering with the California State University Bakersfield to offer summer jobs to students who register to vote.

The summer jobs will be paid at the minimum wage and will last for six weeks. The jobs will provide students with valuable work experience and help them to learn about the job market.

The Student Government Association is also partnering with the Bakersfield College Foundation to offer scholarships to students who register to vote.

The scholarships will be awarded to students who register to vote and who maintain a 3.0 GPA or better.

The Student Government Association is also partnering with the BC Idea Grant Program to offer grants to students who register to vote.

The grants will be awarded to students who register to vote and who have an idea for a project.

The Student Government Association is also partnering with the BC Media Lab to offer workshops to students who register to vote.

The workshops will be held every Saturday during the day and evening. The workshops will teach students how to register to vote and how to register to vote in the future.

"I encourage everyone to vote," said Jones. "It’s the right thing to do."
Renegade Rip wins top CNPA award

The Renegade Rip won second place in general excellence for community college newspapers in the 1999 Better Newspapers Contest sponsored by the California Newspaper Publishers Association. The paper has not won the award since 1993.

The contest judges community college papers throughout the state in all areas of journalistic excellence. The award was announced during CNPA’s annual conference in San Diego this summer.

Michael C. Hall stars in "The Watcher," a movie about a 47-year-old man who has spent the better part of his life hiding from society. Hall plays a man with a rare form of autism who has been living in a house for 25 years and has never left his home.

The movie opens with a scene of Hall's character, David, sitting in his house, looking out the window. He is wearing a red t-shirt and his hair is unkempt. The scene is shot in black and white, which adds to the sense of isolation.

David has been living in the house since he was a child, and he has never had any contact with other people. He is able to communicate by using a computer, and he has never left his home. He is content with his life, but he is also lonely.

As the movie progresses, David begins to interact more with the outside world. He starts to talk to a neighbor, and he even goes out to buy groceries. He is fascinated by the world outside his house, and he is excited to make new friends.

The Bakersfield College Renegades are going to have a hard time winning their game against Grossmont College, but the team is determined to come out on top.

The Renegades are currently 1-1-1 in the Western State Conference, while the Griffins are 2-0-0. The game is crucial for both teams, as it will determine which team will take the lead in the conference.

The Renegades have been struggling to find a rhythm on offense, and they will have to work hard to break through the defense of the Griffins.

Students frustrated over high book prices

BY HENRY FRANCO Rip staff writer

A 27 percent markup on textbooks this semester has many students dissatisfied, as others are looking into book buying alternatives.

"I got a lot of high marks on my first exam," said BC student Maria Gonzalez.

"I can't believe the prices this year," said another BC student.

Some students who commute from out of town also are feeling the strain.

"I spend at least 40 bucks a week in gas as it is, plus having to buy these books," said student guitars, who travels from Delano.

Certain majors also are hit harder by the high prices.

"It seems like mine are the most expensive," says math major Karen Hoffman about her books.

But not everyone is unhappy about the high prices.

Student Linda Perez, says, "It doesn't really bug me since I get financial aid." Some students spend more than $300 a semester on textbooks. Student Emily Thomas, says, "I spent over $300 so far, and I still need one more book for a class that hasn't started yet.

"A lot of my friends are the same way. They might not even buy all their books," says student.

Those wondering why the books cost more this year can look to a few different reasons.

New editions and publisher's fees are a major factor in the markup according to BC bookstore Director Robert Day.

"We have so many new editions this semester and those are controlled by the publishers," says Day.

The used book market is also affected by new problems for students.

"We can't buy used books through publishers," says Day.

"With so many new editions, we are out of the cheap price range of buying used books. So we are regulated at that point. But there is a standard markup across the board every year," Day also states that one of the misconceptions in how big faculty plays a role in which books are used.

"Faculty picks and chooses what books they think we really need," says Day. Students should be concerned about book prices and hopes to do something about the situation.

"I think the used book market is the way to go," says Day. "I'd also like to see teachers not use one book.

Those shopping around at other bookstores such as Barnes & Noble or B. Dalton may be able to save.

"They probably are only a few dollars cheaper," says Day. "Also, while there may be some good deals online, refunds are difficult to get."

"Refunds can take up to three to four weeks," says Day. "The service aspect is different."

Petitioners, vendors take aim at students’ pocketbooks

Paul Olson sat curly outside the campus center yesterday collecting signatures for a petition to cut the state tax on gasoline.

He and his partner Patrick Johnson were collecting signatures during the first week of school as part of a volunteer effort. Unlike other vendors on campus, Olson and Johnson are not getting paid for each signature they collected. Besides keeping signatures, they also asked students to vote.

"Basically we are Republicans and we are trying to get 10,000 people to sign."

"I thought it was a good idea," Olson said.

Event celebrates Mexican culture

By Patricia Prieto

It was a family affair at the eighth annual mariachi festival held at Bakersfield College's Chicano Cultural Center. The event, which features the top bands Mariachi San Marcos, Mariachi Sinaloa, and Mariachi Vargas, along with Mariachi Los Compadres, is the largest of its kind in the region.

Mariachi San Marcos, under the direction of Alfonso Becerra, received rave reviews from the festival. "It's an honor to be here," said Becerra. "We've been preparing for this event for months and we're very excited to perform." The band, which is known for its traditional Mexican music, entertained the crowd with a variety of songs, including favorites like "Guadalupe" and "La Paloma."

Mariachi Sinaloa, under the direction of Jose Luis Trujillo, also received high praise from attendees. "This is a special event," said Trujillo. "We come here every year to celebrate our culture and to share our music with others." The band performed a mix of traditional and contemporary Mexican music, including "El Tocon" and "La Virgen de Guadalupe."

Mariachi Vargas, under the direction of Hector Barajas, was the last band to perform. "This is our favorite festival," said Barajas. "We love coming here to celebrate our culture and to perform for our community." The band performed a mix of traditional and contemporary Mexican music, including "Vamos a Danzar" and "Viva México."

BC: Campus circus opens for business

By Michael D. Ross

The first few weeks of college might seem overwhelming to some students. The hectic schedule of classes, assignments, and extracurricular activities can be daunting. But for students at Bakersfield College, there's a new addition to the campus scene that can help ease the transition: the Campus Circus.

The Circus, located in the newly renovated Child Care Center, is a space where students can come together to relax and have fun. "It's a great place to unwind," said one student. "I come here when I need a break from the stresses of college." The Circus is open to all students and features a variety of activities, including magicians, clowns, and acrobats.

"It's an amazing place that found in the middle of the city," said another student. "I've been here a few times and it's always a lot of fun." The Circus is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and is located in the Child Care Center.

Nurse Betty’ cures all
Unique film combines comedy with dark humor to create fine performances

BY RONNIE JOLLISON

"Nurse Betty" is a curiously moving movie. It is a comedy, but it’s just as much a dark film as it is for laughs. It’s a very unusual film that probably won’t appeal to everyone, but it is hard to imagine any film buff in the world of the big screen not wanting to see it. They may not like it, but I defy anyone to resist it. It is a film that is sure to make the world of film buffing a better place.

"Nurse Betty" is a film that is sure to make the world of film buffing a better place.

The film is set in a hospital, and it is the story of Betty, a young nurse who has just started her first job. She is a bit of a wild child, and she is not afraid to show it. She is also a bit of a klutz, and she constantly makes mistakes. But she is also a bit of a genius, and she always manages to find a way to make the hospital run better.

The film is very well directed, and it is filled with great performances. The cast is excellent, and it is hard to pick a favorite. But I think that it is the performance of the young actress who plays Betty that is the star of the show. She is a real talent, and she is sure to have a bright future in front of her.

The script is very well written, and it is filled with great lines. The dialogue is very sharp, and it is sure to make you laugh. But it is also very dark, and it is sure to make you think. The film is a real masterpiece, and it is sure to be remembered for a long time to come.

Counselors offer advice for career planning

BY PATRICIA PINEDA
Rip staff writer

Kathy Roselli, division chair for student services and a counselor at Bakersfield College, began her work on campus in 1979 in the residence halls. Originally her goal was to become a high school history teacher, but while working to the residence halls she found herself doing informal counseling for many of the students.

"When I was living in the residence halls what I was finding was that students who were moving into the dorms, they were not happy. They were coming to me for help so that’s how I got interested in the counseling field. It was just because of that," Roselli said.

Roselli is one of the most successful counselors students can meet within the counseling center. Also, students who have met with a counselor and have developed a career plan can receive assistance from the academic advisers in the center.

"Counselors are facility, they teach classes, they have master’s degrees. Educational advisers are the staff located in the career center. They aren’t teachers but they have a lot of experience. They are those who help with simple questions about being in college, but when you want to talk to someone about what kinds of careers to pursue and getting assessment courses interpreted, you see a counselor," Roselli explained.

The counseling center is open year round with the exception of scheduled holidays in the academic calendar. In addition to counseling students, part-time counselors teach classes and serve on committees.

"A typical week would be attending meetings, teaching and working with students. Typically, we would see 1,200 students a year. If you divide that up into a 12-month period, it would average about 100 students a month," Roselli said.

"A counselor teaches anything from three to four classes on average," said Roselli.

Counselors also must be informed and say what’s new in the different school systems. "They try to direct to different programs. They have conferences helps to keep them informed on what’s new in counseling," Roselli said.

In the eight years Roselli has been at the University of California,

OPENING NIGHT

Students prepare for two weeks of Kern Shakespeare Festival performances of "Macbeth" and "Twelfth Night" in October.

BY HENRY FRANCO
Rip staff writer

The opening of the Kern Shakespeare Festival promises to be an exciting event. This year’s festival features "Macbeth" and "Twelfth Night." The festival opens Oct. 4 with "Macbeth," which sets the mood of all Shakespearean plays.

"Macbeth" is the story of a scholar who is brave and honest, but descended by darkness from within. Driven by insecurity, he ends up fighting a road of evil from which there is no return. Audience members can expect sword fights and singing调理.

Directed by professional director Bob Kemp, who is from Los Angeles, "Twelfth Night" features 20 actors involved in a common comedy of errors.

It tells the story of Viola, who finds herself shipwrecked on a desert island. She disguises herself as a boy to save others around the island. She makes her love in the man who has given her shelter, although the object of her love, Olivia, ends up falling in love with Viola.

"Twelfth Night" is one of the funnest of Shakespeare plays," he says. "I am sure everyone will enjoy it."

"Twelfth Night" will be directed by a couple in Shakespearean plays won’t be disappointed. There are more than 200 costumes in the plays, according to costume designer James McDonald.

"You will be seeing some more wonderful theater, by the greatest playwright ever lived," says Randy McMahan, who heads the BC Theatre Department. "We also have guest actors when the audiance will enjoy it."

Three guest includes professional director character actor Michelle McMahon, Tim Harling, Chris Earling, Ellen McMahan, Shane Hearn, as well as "Twelfth Night" director Kemp, who is featured in both plays. McMahon and Earling are in "Macbeth" while Harling, Earling and Hearn are featured in both productions.

Several actors from the plays are enjoying their time working on the festival.

Production manager Guinevere Packard, who is also featured as a witch in "Macbeth," says, "I’ve really enjoyed my experience working with these guest actors."

"It’s a wonderful play to add," says Earling. "We’re going to give us knowledge and fun experience. It’s good to have them."

The festival will run beginning Oct. 4 and continue running until Oct. 21. Tickets are $5 per person and $5 for students and senior are available at the BC Ticket Office. For information, call 393-4120.

When contacted for comment, staff and coaches in the gym said they had been hearing about the same property that was taken since the case remains under investigation.

None of the cases has been given to the city police department to determine a division for follow-up.

Clubs maintain advisers despite union’s ‘work to rule’ advice

BY BEVERLY SAUNDERS
Campus Editor

Work to rule, a request made by the teachers’ union, is encouraging Bakersfield College faculty members to do as much as their contract permits. The union placed many club advisers in a quandary, because acting as a club adviser is a contractual requirement — it’s voluntary.

But despite the union’s advice, many advisers are standing by student needs.

Often clubs hold advisers as weak points in the evening and the club advisers are then informed of their time and readiness.

The Bakersfield Rip conducted a survey of campus club and advisers. As of last week, 15 of the 19 advisors were committed to continue.

"We felt we had exhausted the leverage of attention-getting devices we had at our disposal that didn’t hurt the students," said John Gerholdt, president of the faculty union.

Littered campus shows lack of respect for college

High school prowler

We don't care if your room is in a disaster zone. We do, however, care that you are making our campus look like a landfill.
Even the landfill below the bluffs has been cleaned up.

The solution is simple and easy:

1. The school makes sure we are provided with a trash can.
2. We don't care if your room is a disaster zone.
3. We do, however, care that you are making our campus look like a landfill.

Teacher explains decision to not add students over class size limits

BY DAN LEWIS

The size of the class is very important to me as a teacher. I've been teaching for many years and I've seen firsthand how the size of the class can affect the learning environment.

I understand the need to have a larger class size in order to accommodate a larger number of students, but I believe that the optimal size is between 20-25 students.

The teacher also explained that they had to consider the quality of education they can provide to each student. With a larger class size, the teacher may not be able to give individual attention to each student.

The teacher concluded by stating that they would continue to look for ways to improve the learning environment for all students.

Does this decision affect you? Let us know in the comments below.

A Fair to Remember

Bizarre fair food not fit for human consumption

By Vanessa Bouthillier

The Kern County Fair is a time to hang out with your friends, visit vendors you've never met before, and try some of the most delicious foods spread across the land. The fair is famous for its fair fun, but some of the offerings may not be as appetizing as they sound.

I was on a search for the most bizarre foods at the fair when I stumbled upon a vendor selling deep-fried snacks. As I approached the booth, I noticed a large squid sitting on top of the counter, ready to be crispy-fied.

I decided to try one of the most unusual treats offered. I ordered a deep-fried squid, curious to see what it would taste like. As I bit into it, I realized that the squid was not the only thing that caught my attention. The girl behind the counter, who was busy working, had a large grin on her face.

She explained that the squid was deep-fried and that it would be a unique experience. I couldn't resist the temptation and ordered one. The squid was crispy on the outside, with a soft and chewy center. I was shocked at how delicious it was, and I knew I had to try more.

I walked around the fair, trying different foods, and I found that most of them were not as bizarre as I had expected. The fair was a place where people could enjoy food from all over the world, and I was glad to be a part of it.

However, after trying a few more foods, I realized that some of them were not fit for human consumption. I had seen deep-fried grasshoppers, deep-fried insects, and even deep-fried spiders, but nothing could compare to the deep-fried squid.

The fair is a place where people can enjoy food and music, but it's also a place where they can learn about new foods and cultures. I left the fair with a renewed appreciation for the diversity of food, and I knew that I would come back next year to try more.

Pigs, rides, candies: a walk down Kern's memory lane

By Samantha Davies

Editor in Chief

You have to love the fair. It is the first dose of fun you can feel after a long winter or summer spent indoors. You can see the best of Kern County at the fair, where people come to enjoy the sights, sounds, and smells of the fair.

I was at the fair last night, and I loved every moment of it. I saw everything from rides to games, and I even got to try some of the delicious foods. I was especially impressed by the deep-fried squid, which was a new experience for me.

I thought that the fair was a great place to spend time with friends and family, and I'm already looking forward to going back next year.
