Frieson’s goals met at BC

By Vincent Perez

Frieson is coming back from three seasons.

Frieson announced on Wednesday that he would return to BC for his last season, bringing the total to 826 in the class of 2009.

Frieson, who has been a part of the BC men's basketball team for the past three years, is looking forward to spending his senior season with the team.

"I'm excited to be back with the team," Frieson said. "I've enjoyed my time here so far, and I'm excited to see what this season has in store for us.

Frieson currently has 2,409 on the BC men's basketball team.

The Bakersfield Chinese Women's Club and the Chinese American Student Association at CSUB, hosted the Chinese Cultural Program at the Library, Oct. 25, with a Chinese Lion Dance.

The event held in the library's council room was well-attended, with Chinese officials and representatives from the Chinese Cultural Program. The event was also attended by many local residents and visitors from Chinese communities throughout the area.

The Chinese Lion Dance, performed by the Chinese Cultural Program, was a highlight of the event. The dragon-like creature, with its long, flowing neck and large red eyes, was a symbol of good fortune and prosperity in Chinese culture.

The dragon-dancers performed a traditional dance, moving in a circular motion around the room. The dance is believed to bring good luck and prosperity to those who watch.

The program also featured an exhibition of Chinese art, including calligraphy, paintings, and embroidery. The art was created by Chinese artists and was a beautiful representation of Chinese culture.

The event was hosted by the Chinese Cultural Program, which is a non-profit organization that promotes Chinese culture and heritage. The organization has been active in the community for many years and has hosted many events in the past.

The Bakersfield Chinese Women's Club presented a costume show in which models displayed the Qipao, a traditional Chinese women's garment. The show featured a variety of Qipao styles, including modern and traditional designs.

The show was a hit with the audience, who were impressed by the beauty and elegance of the garments. The models also performed a tea ceremony, which is a traditional Chinese practice that involves preparing and serving tea.

The event was a success, and many people were interested in learning more about Chinese culture. The Chinese Cultural Program is planning to host more events in the future to continue promoting Chinese culture to the community.

New doctor and assistants serve BC students

By KATHERINE J. WHITE

The campus health center now offers a new doctor and two assistant doctors.

Dr. Michael Barber, former doctor for the Homeless Veterans Program, came to the campus health center in September. Dr. Barber's practice focuses on the needs of veterans, and he will be available on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Dr. Barber's assistant, Dr. Valerie Ferguson, was also introduced to the campus health center.

The addition of these new doctors aims to address veterans' unique medical needs and improveoverall health care services.

Student Government

A new president has been elected to lead the Student Government Association (SGA): Sarah Novak.

Novak, who replaces outgoing president Jennifer Long, is a psychology major and a member of the Silence Club.

Novak said she plans to continue the current initiatives and work toward new ones.

"I'm excited to work with the student body and help make BC a better place," Novak said.

The SGA will focus on issues such as student engagement, community service and campus policies.

Novak also expressed her commitment to providing a student-friendly environment.

"I want to make sure that students feel heard and valued," she said.

With the new leadership, BC students can expect to see more involvement and representation in decision-making processes.

Local band mixes genres

By GABRIELA MENDOZA

Valencia's film Horizon allows the band to mix genres and has influenced their sound, creating a unique musical experience.

The band members are experimenting with different styles, combining hip hop, rock, reggae and electronic influences.

This fusion of genres has allowed the band to challenge traditional boundaries and create a new sound.

"It's been a journey to find our unique voice," said lead singer Michael Aguilar.

The band's music has evolved over time, with each member contributing their own perspective.

"We wanted to create something that's not just for ourselves, but for everyone," Aguilar said.

With the support of their fans, the band continues to grow and evolve their sound, ensuring a unique experience for their listeners.

"It's been an incredible journey," Aguilar added.

Homecoming suffers some cancellations

By KELLY AMOS

Although the SGA is working to keep homecoming events moving forward, some cancellations have been announced.

The main event, the Homecoming Football Game, has been moved to a later date due to scheduling conflicts.

Although the game has been rescheduled, other events are still in the planning stages.

"We are working hard to make sure everyone has a great experience," said SGA President Sarah Novak.

The SGA is also exploring alternative ways to celebrate homecoming, such as virtual events and social gatherings.

"We want to ensure that everyone feels included and connected," she said.

With the rescheduled game and other events, homecoming will still provide an exciting opportunity for the BC community to come together and celebrate.

Cashiers ask that you get off your cell

Although customers may only see them for a minute, cashiers deserve enough respect for shoppers to get off their phone when at the register.

By SUSANNE MOORE

Working in retail, I am one of many people who come in contact with the public. Sometimes I feel like a fish on a hook with the constant pressure to please. People often walk into the store being rude and not ready to do business. This is particularly true on our busiest days when the stores are crowded. People often expect the store to do everything for them. If they are not satisfied, they can just walk out. This is why we must be patient and understanding. People often have busy lives and are trying to make the family's time count. Respect for the shopper is key.

 Politics a fashion statement among youth

Celebrities have used their fame for the good by bringing awareness to issues that concern them, and many youth follow their example by wearing their clothing or using their platforms to express their values. This trend is not limited to social media influencers, but also to politicians and public figures. It is a way for them to use their influence to promote a cause or share their beliefs with the public. As a result, fashion becomes a way to express political views, which is why we see so many politicians wearing suits or ties, and重要原因 is to show that they are part of the government. However, it is important to note that fashion is not always political; it can also be about personal style or image. Nonetheless, the trend of using fashion to make a statement is here to stay.

Troubled mothers must seek support to save their children

By ELIZABETH MILES

It is a common issue for mothers with troubled children to feel overwhelmed and alone. They may struggle to balance their responsibilities and find the time to seek help. It is important for these mothers to seek support and not feel ashamed. They should not be afraid to ask for help or reach out to a professionals. There are many resources available, such as counseling services or support groups, that can provide the necessary support. It is crucial for mothers to take care of themselves so they can better care for their children. This will not only benefit them, but also their children.

BC’s election reaction mixed

By BASHA HERNANDEZ

Staff Writer

The students are over the results are in, and people are reacting to the news. But the students’ reaction is not the only thing students are reacting to. The students are also reacting to the fact that Barack Obama was elected president.

The incoming president is the first African-American president in the United States, a fact that some students find inspiring. "I think it’s really cool that someone who looks like me can become president," said Emily Green, a junior.

Others, however, are not as excited. "I don’t think it’s going to make a difference," said John Smith, a senior. "I don’t think it’s going to change anything."

Protests are also taking place on campus, with some students calling for a boycott of classes. "I’m not going to go to school until they fire all the police," said one student.

Obama makes history, changes political campaigns of future

After what seemed like the longest campaign in modern history, the final results are in: Barack Obama is the new president of the United States.

Obama, who was a candidate in the Democratic primaries, was the clear favorite in the general election. His opponent, Senator John McCain, was a popular candidate in the Republican primaries, but he was not able to win over the majority of the voters.

Obama’s victory is significant because he is the first African-American president. This is a historic moment for the United States, and it is a moment that will be remembered for years to come.

Obama’s victory is also significant because he is a candidate who ran on a platform of change. He promised to bring about change in the United States, and he has already started doing that.
