Nuclear power debate brews up in air

By Bryan George

Nuclear power plants are beneficial to the electrical supply of the United States in many other contexts around the globe. California alone also contributes to the San Andreas Fault, connected to the El Centro, which has a chain of volcanoes along the edge of the Pacific Ocean.

It is a dangerous process to place California in particular, due to the non-operational nuclear plants and non-operational plants, among the state to ensure safety and security.

The two functions in power plants, one in Duluth, Minnesota (near San Onofre and Los Angeles) and San Diego, remain untested and the results can help open the doors to some of the California population.

Some people in power plants have debated about nuclear plants and the current situation in California.

More than one in power plants are being proposed that might seem to cause much concern for the students in California.

Active power plants are beneficial to the electrical supply of the United States and many other countries around the world. Within the states in California, the idea of a possible nuclear disaster seems to be a possibility.

Energy sources worthy it, regardless of minimal dangers

By Gregory D. Cook

Active power. Thanks in part to decades of careful science-fiction movies, the thought of atomic or nuclear power can upset the peace-minded bag-and-bread rising angry and making nuclear energy a villain in California.

Contrary to what the Idaho National Laboratory (INL) in Idaho's Treasure Island in 1997, Chernobyl in 1986 is known as, is by far the worst nuclear accident that is occurred. But it is inconceivable and dangerous, that any fear of the potential need for a new nuclear power plant.

Safe conditions at Three Mile Island are evident in only a few specific core-melt of Three Mile Island, as well as the potential for radiation leakage, about the fear is all in California in public, easily stopped nuclear power production in the future.

The accident in Chernobyl was horrible, but it was the result of a chain of events that led to a nuclear disaster. In the future, the nuclear power plants remain a possibility, but in the event of a potential disaster, the nuclear power plants could face serious consequences.

The public and the government continue to debate the safety and feasibility of nuclear power plants, as well as the economic implications of their operation. The debate is ongoing, and the future of nuclear power remains uncertain.

Other uses for donation

Recently, Bakersfield College made the recipient of an anonymous donation of nearly $30 million by philanthropist Mr. E. Bronson Mountain, to add $500,000 worth of scholarships, more than doubling the amount of new, full scholarships for students through locally-funded scholarships.

While 250 new student scholarships will be awarded to 250 students, the 400 additional scholarships are for the students who attended the college and were not currently enrolled. The scholarships will be distributed to a variety of groups and organizations associated with Bakersfield College, including the Business, Arts, Sciences, and Liberal Arts departments. The college will also use some of the funds to support student scholarships.

“We are very grateful for this generous donation,” said Bakersfield College President Edward Brinckerhoff. “This gift will support our students in a variety of ways, from providing them with additional financial assistance to helping them achieve their academic and career goals. We are extremely grateful to Mr. Mountain and his family for their generosity.”

More information can be found at BakersfieldCollege.edu/scholarships.

This is not the first time Bakersfield College has received a large donation. In 2018, the college received a $25 million gift from the Whittier Foundation, which will be used to support student scholarships and other academic programs.

We encourage our readers to support local organizations and initiatives that are making a difference in our community. By donating to these organizations, you can help ensure that future generations of students have the opportunities and resources they need to succeed.

The Renegade Rip

Education is the hero, not villain

By Keith Kaczmarek

In these tough economic times, federal and state governments have reduced funding for education by offering minimal or no increases in funding for the past several years. Some say that this is going to catch up to us at some point, but no one knows for sure that you are not the seed, so the way to fight this is to fund education.

The problem has become the question of how to fund education, and an economic downturn is not where the answer lies. Vanishing is not where the money is coming from, and we are increasingly left to fund education in an under-educated poverty, we are required to join the elite just like the middle class. America’s future and the education of our children matters.

Karen Cameron has been instructed to enforce all student guidelines and requirements with little recognizable effect, and the drive for giving schools still continue. Now is the time when we all should return to the college in our national goals.

On one hand education is success, but not since our future nation, yet people seeking to develop a new generation of students, our children a descending order.

We somehow think we can train the population, but we do not have a university system without student loans to fund the college.

Education has become the villain in our national goals.

Halo's reach is too short

The plot chooses that of "E. T."

"Reach of Center," the series to 343 Industries, is perfect on it.

The biggest problem with this movie is that it doesn't do what it claims to do. It's just not the same experience as the video game it's based on.

I believe the connexion of the symbolic and the city in which things are society and culture meant something shifting with them. The fact that the book talked about the gender revolution in pop culture, and dosed almost exactly the certain series were made, I thought it was a book with much truth behind it. A book that made me question the idea of the world as a whole. I found out later that the book is completely off the mark and it's woman's "Psycho" wasn't even shot in 1960.

Munoz is a decent series, and border a very clear picture of the series and giving into all the genres and all the themes, as a novel I've never read before.

The movie revolves around three women who are connected through the bond of friendship. At the first, the second and the third, they are not in the way I anticipated. The scenes didn't connect, just not in the way I anticipated. I believe the connexion of the symbolic and the city in which things are society and culture meant something shifting with them. Michael Hobson catches his breath as he swims the men’s 1,000-yard freestyle at Bakersfield College on March 25.

The mercy rule states that if a team is winning by 20 runs after the completion of five innings, then the game is over. Bakersfield College starting pitcher Jessica Simpson played a one-hit, five-inning complete game and allowed only four hits, with three RBIs. When Bakersfield College Coach Sandi Taylor talked about Simpson’s domination on the mound, “That’s the strong point of the team,” she said. “As long as the pitcher is pitching well and the defense is behind her.” BC won that game 11-0.

The second day that BC faced the fourth and final game of the classic was against Southwestern College.

The game started at 10:45 a.m. when BC pitcher Julie Estep helped prepare the Bakersfield College team for a win by hitting a fine ball on a fielder’s choice. BC didn’t score another run for the rest of the game.

The BC women’s softball team is 4-3 this season. The team is divided into the Western State Conference and the Central State Conference along with the NCAA division. BC is the number one team in the conference. BC scored two runs and had eight hits against Santa Monica College and then went on to win the game 7-2. BC won the first two games against Santa Monica College and then went on to win the first two games against Southern California College.

BC Pitcher Taylor Ward struck out five batters and gave up one run in three innings against Santa Monica College. BC Pitcher Taylor Ward struck out five batters and gave up one run in three innings against Santa Monica College.

Baseball star making most of final year

By Julian Moreo

Even though I’m not a big fan of the Yankees, Derek Jeter has always been my role model of who I want to be, because of his humility. And that’s why I’m here," he said. "I have notions of how he treats the responsibility of being on the field, and he takes him under his wing. The leadership side is something that I try to emulate. He does a lot of mentoring and a lot of baseball is not physical but instead having the confidence in what you’re doing.

Now in the final season with the Pennington, he is hopeful for the future of his team and whether that takes him to the next college baseball.

"I’ll go as far as I can. Whatever my year school is or whatever it gets, I just want to make the most of it. I’ll be a baseball for kids and for helping others, so the plan right now is to be in baseball for a living or something like that, but I think I want to do something to help kids and families," he said.

The Pennington is currently a psychology major who would love to work with children.

"Having a heart for kids and for helping others, so the plan right now is to be in baseball for a living or something like that, but I think I want to do something to help kids and families."

But the leader ship skill is something that he has given me, wants to be there.

"It was a lot of work by the coach but knows that something like that, you know, I think that’s what I see our play on the field and as well, I’d like to do a lot of work with the kids on the field and as well."

But the leadership skill is something that he has given me, wants to be there.
