With the recent wildfires that ravaged Northern California, the topography “could enhance fire-spread,” Hartley said. “We believe that most fires are caused by cooking,” Ramos said. “Other factors, which fall below fire safety, include heating, electrical malfunctions, and children that play with fire,” Ramos said. The movement gained popularity after recent allegations of sexual assault against Harvey Weinstein. The first woman spoke out against him, many others began to do the same. As of now, there are dozens of women accusing Weinstein of inappropriate behavior, sexual harassment, and sexual assault. Many women, including celebrities, took notice of the controversy and decided to do something. Actress Alyssa Michae- lane revealed on Oct. 15 making survivors of sexual assault and harassment to post the #MeToo after asking one of her friends for help. After the actress brought attention to the campaign, millions of women decided to speak up. Social media was soon filled with posts of females who had been sexually abused. Several Congress women have recently joined the cause and shared their experiences with others on social media.

Bill AB424 makes KHSD gun free campus

By Andrea King

Beginning Jan. 1, 2016, California State Assembly Bill AB 434, an update to California’s Gun Free School Zones law which prevents anyone from possessing or carrying a firearm while on a school campus, will take effect. The law already prevents the possession of firearms on school campuses and school districts have little effect on Bakersfield, as allowed under SB 707. AB 424 will also extend that decision, making the state a gun-free zone in the future. The passing of AB 424 will have little effect on Bakersfield College, which is already a gun-free campus. According to Shaefer, as allowed under SB 707. AB 424 will extend that decision, making the state a gun-free zone in the future. The passing of AB 424 will have little effect on Bakersfield College, which is already a gun-free campus. According to Shaefer, as allowed under SB 707. AB 424 will extend that decision, making the state a gun-free zone in the future. The passing of AB 424 will have little effect on Bakersfield College, which is already a gun-free campus.
By Melissa Puryear

A group of radiology students gathered at the Office of Financial Aid booth on campus, during the Health Connections Fair on Oct. 5, to discuss aid and scholarships.

Some students were asked questions by financial aid representatives, whether they had applied for scholarships. Many students said they had no time, or were not interested in the process, and had no idea that there were many scholarships specifically for radiology students.

The Bakersfield College financial aid process is in fact simple enough that taking a few minutes to go to this could be beneficial to any student’s college expenses. Not applying for scholarships comes at a financial loss to the student, which only comes around once a year. On Oct. 1, according to Executive Director of the Bakersfield College Financial Aid Organizational Trustees between January and Council, and the KCCD Board Parsons, an engineering, ship between AECOM, an engineering, agriculture. From STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) Master Planning meeting $503 million bond to construct 25 to discuss the future of the campus, according to Gelder, is the ability to put in keywords to search for scholarships that might apply to a student’s degree.

Bakersfield College radiology students talk to financial aid representatives at Financial Aid booth on campus during the Health Connections Fair held on Oct. 5.

AECOM to partner with BC for Measure J bond

By Jennifer Resto

Bakersfield College, a Public Safety Institution, was under siege in the month of August, as robocallers were targeting their neighbors. They were using the opportunity to offer some helpful measures. These tips take aim at reducing the likelihood of being scammed.

Some students were asked questions by financial aid representatives, whether they had applied for scholarships. Many students said they had no time, or were not interested in the process, and had no idea that there were many scholarships specifically for radiology students.

The Bakersfield College financial aid process is in fact simple enough that taking a few minutes to go to this could be beneficial to any student’s college expenses. Not applying for scholarships comes at a financial loss to the student, which only comes around once a year. On Oct. 1, according to Executive Director of the Bakersfield College Financial Aid Organizational Trustees between January and Council, and the KCCD Board Parsons, an engineering, ship between AECOM, an engineering, agriculture. From STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) Master Planning meeting $503 million bond to construct 25 to discuss the future of the campus, according to Gelder, is the ability to put in keywords to search for scholarships that might apply to a student’s degree.

Bakersfield College radiology students talk to financial aid representatives at Financial Aid booth on campus during the Health Connections Fair held on Oct. 5.

AECOM to partner with BC for Measure J bond

By Jennifer Resto

Bakersfield College, a Public Safety Institution, was under siege in the month of August, as robocallers were targeting their neighbors. They were using the opportunity to offer some helpful measures. These tips take aim at reducing the likelihood of being scammed.

Some students were asked questions by financial aid representatives, whether they had applied for scholarships. Many students said they had no time, or were not interested in the process, and had no idea that there were many scholarships specifically for radiology students.

The Bakersfield College financial aid process is in fact simple enough that taking a few minutes to go to this could be beneficial to any student’s college expenses. Not applying for scholarships comes at a financial loss to the student, which only comes around once a year. On Oct. 1, according to Executive Director of the Bakersfield College Financial Aid Organizational Trustees between January and Council, and the KCCD Board Parsons, an engineering, ship between AECOM, an engineering, agriculture. From STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) Master Planning meeting $503 million bond to construct 25 to discuss the future of the campus, according to Gelder, is the ability to put in keywords to search for scholarships that might apply to a student’s degree.

Bakersfield College radiology students talk to financial aid representatives at Financial Aid booth on campus during the Health Connections Fair held on Oct. 5.

AECOM to partner with BC for Measure J bond

By Jennifer Resto

Bakersfield College, a Public Safety Institution, was under siege in the month of August, as robocallers were targeting their neighbors. They were using the opportunity to offer some helpful measures. These tips take aim at reducing the likelihood of being scammed.

Some students were asked questions by financial aid representatives, whether they had applied for scholarships. Many students said they had no time, or were not interested in the process, and had no idea that there were many scholarships specifically for radiology students.

The Bakersfield College financial aid process is in fact simple enough that taking a few minutes to go to this could be beneficial to any student’s college expenses. Not applying for scholarships comes at a financial loss to the student, which only comes around once a year. On Oct. 1, according to Executive Director of the Bakersfield College Financial Aid Organizational Trustees between January and Council, and the KCCD Board Parsons, an engineering, ship between AECOM, an engineering, agriculture. From STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) Master Planning meeting $503 million bond to construct 25 to discuss the future of the campus, according to Gelder, is the ability to put in keywords to search for scholarships that might apply to a student’s degree.

Bakersfield College radiology students talk to financial aid representatives at Financial Aid booth on campus during the Health Connections Fair held on Oct. 5.
Chelsey Williams plays in Bakersfield

By Karla Gutierrez

Chelsey Williams, a singer-songwriter, performed on Oct. 20 at the Tumbleweed Country and Comedy Club in Bakersfield on her new album, Boomerang.

Williams, who’s only 24, has been loving her music for more than a decade. She’s acquired those skills for and she would run to the stage and be singing on it. Williams said that actually pay because a lot of them don’t want to.”

While writing her songs, Williams said, “I really love to write... I don’t really write to that level that wouldn’t normally get me thinking because... That’s where my music pops up.”

For example, she grew up listening to Sheryl Crow, etc. They have all-

“Don’t Want To Die Alone” from her new album Boomerang.

Along with many others, Williams has done this. She’s one of the most well-known singer-songwriters, who has written records for some of the biggest names in the music business. She said, “I would like to start keeping more money in the bank. I want to keep doing that kind of work.”

The game was followed by a dance and a few rounds of trivia.

The zoo was decorated with Halloween-themed decor, including pumpkins, spiders, and bats. The entrance fee was $35, which includes admission to all the exhibits.

In addition to the workshops, there were also prominent figures in the Latinx community who were there to promote their organizations and offer resources to the attendees.

She’s been playing music for a couple of years and working or working for a telemarketing company and making a steady income. She made a video of herself singing in a local coffee shop and it went viral.

She’s been playing music for a couple of years and working or working for a telemarketing company and making a steady income. She made a video of herself singing in a local coffee shop and it went viral.

Williams mentioned that she’s had a lot of changes in her life in the past few years. For example, she grew up listening to Sheryl Crow, etc. They have all-
Local residents run 5k in costumes at the Park at Riverwalk for charity at the Haunted Hustle

By Ambria King

Photo Editor

More than 150 local residents gathered at the Park at Riverwalk at 6:30 a.m. on Oct. 28 to participate in the Haunted Hustle, a marathon hosted by Super Fly Events. Participants rang in the holiday season with a unique 5k event that involved dressing up as a movie character. On average, runners wanted to dress as the Phantom of the Opera.

Participants changed out of their costumes at the Park at Riverwalk for charity at the Haunted Hustle.

By Alexandra Apurina

Reporter

The City Theater held a special screening of the original 1925 silent version of The Phantom of the Opera. The screening took place on Oct. 22, exactly 90 years after the film was released. The film, directed by Rupert Julian and starring Lon Chaney, is considered to be a horror movie classic. The screening was a part of the Haunted Hustle, a 5k marathon hosted by Super Fly Events. Participants dressed up as movie characters for the event.

Renegade Struggles: James Tompkins

We all have a struggle, and everyone has a different story. Each issue of The Rip will feature a student overcoming certain challenges to gain an education and better their life.

By Mallory Pavera

Reporter

“Struggle...it’s a part of 18 to 22, and it’s nothing new,” said James Tompkins. “I have never seen anything like this, but this time I wanted people to be compelled to do something, instead of hanging out on the coach all day,” said Tompkins.

Joe Rinaudo inspects his 1909 Process Cameragraph at “The Phantom of the Opera.”

Tompkins said he first became inspired by Danny Muerillo. “I’m only a year into my education, and there are still so many students that have never been to college. Right now, people come inspired by Danny, but in the end, he’s the one who will have to push themselves to succeed,” Tompkins said.

The theater will be working to show more black and white silent films like “The Phantom of the Opera” in the future.

By Anastasia Sapon-Richard

Feature Editor

 Taken in the press.
Chris Brantley, a Bakersfield College student majoring in elementary education, asks Thompson about the panel what they think is the best way to battle poverty and get involved.

Thompson mentioned that the book allows him to show you more of the life from a farm worker's point of view. Thompson also said that people talk about their lives in the fields now, and some of them as part farmers as well.

This conversation allowed those who have a passion for chemistry to show off our stuff and get involved in BC student if you haven't tried it before.

The students heard about the people from BC Chamber Singers performed for the local high schools and the importance of STEM in the future.

By Megan Fenwick

Social Media Editor

Bakersfield College

The event, which ran from Oct. 23 in the Edward Simon-Miller Fine Arts Center, featured BC student and Student Government Association librarian, and James Tompkins, a social media editor for the Bakersfield College website.

Each choir had a mini clinic, judged by a guest conductor, "to show off our stuff and get involved in BC student if you haven't tried it before."

The answers given by the students about what they think is the best way to battle poverty and get involved varied. Some students mentioned that they would encourage marriage for needy youth, while others suggested a way to kind of solve poverty through school don't really consider that as a career option.

"In my experience, if you want to be a tour guide in the future, then you should take the classes and then find a job," he said.

The event, which was organized by the Kern High School District, was held in the San Joaquin Valley. According to recent census data, between 2011 and 2015, 23.5 percent are children. By 2011, 24.6 percent were children.

The students also heard about the importance of STEM majors together, and they discussed what working in STEM fields can do to help those in need.

The students also heard about the importance of STEM majors together, and they discussed what working in STEM fields can do to help those in need.

The event, which ran from Oct. 23 in the Edward Simon-Miller Fine Arts Center, featured BC student and Student Government Association librarian, and James Tompkins, a social media editor for the Bakersfield College website.

Each choir had a mini clinic, judged by a guest conductor, "to show off our stuff and get involved in BC student if you haven't tried it before."

The answers given by the students about what they think is the best way to battle poverty and get involved varied. Some students mentioned that they would encourage marriage for needy youth, while others suggested a way to kind of solve poverty through school don't really consider that as a career option.

"In my experience, if you want to be a tour guide in the future, then you should take the classes and then find a job," he said.

The event, which was organized by the Kern High School District, was held in the San Joaquin Valley. According to recent census data, between 2011 and 2015, 23.5 percent are children. By 2011, 24.6 percent were children.

The students also heard about the importance of STEM majors together, and they discussed what working in STEM fields can do to help those in need.

The event, which ran from Oct. 23 in the Edward Simon-Miller Fine Arts Center, featured BC student and Student Government Association librarian, and James Tompkins, a social media editor for the Bakersfield College website.

Each choir had a mini clinic, judged by a guest conductor, "to show off our stuff and get involved in BC student if you haven't tried it before."

The answers given by the students about what they think is the best way to battle poverty and get involved varied. Some students mentioned that they would encourage marriage for needy youth, while others suggested a way to kind of solve poverty through school don't really consider that as a career option.

"In my experience, if you want to be a tour guide in the future, then you should take the classes and then find a job," he said.

The event, which was organized by the Kern High School District, was held in the San Joaquin Valley. According to recent census data, between 2011 and 2015, 23.5 percent are children. By 2011, 24.6 percent were children.
Restaurant Review

Lots of delicious Greek options available at new location of Athena’s Greek Café and Grill

By Megan Fenwick
Social Media Editor

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill has a new location that has opened on 2900 Calloway Drive. The restaurant was decorated with ancient Greek themed art and was somewhat dimly lit except for the light from the windows. I decided to get the Veggie Pita, which is a wheat or white pita filled with grilled squash, zucchini, mushrooms, onions, and bell peppers and topped with tzatziki. I chose the wheat pita and the lemon potatoes as my side along with a salad. My friend Lauren decided to get a side of the rice pilaf so we could share and don’t feel too bad about eating it.

I was really content with my choice. I did feel like they put too much tzatziki on top, so that it was falling out of the pita and the yogurt was overpowering the vegetables. I ordered a small side of a red pepper dip that tasted kind of like hummus and put some of it inside my pita to give it a spicy kick.

The lemon potatoes were well cooked and flavorful. If a little softer than I would have liked. The rice pilaf was flavorful as well, but I would probably choose the spanakopita instead. The other dish we ordered was the spanakopita, a spinach and feta filled Greek pita. The phyllo dough of the spanakopita was flaky and creamy and the filling was creamy and delicious. I had a small spanakopita before at a farmer’s market and didn’t think it was as good as this.

Lastly, I took some dessert from the restaurant’s bakery home with me because I was too full to eat it. It was really hard to choose from our options because of my sweet tooth craving. I’m still not sure what I would have chosen without her, but we loved it and it was the perfect ending to our meal.

I highly recommend this new location of Athena’s Greek Café and Grill. It’s a great addition to the Bakersfield area.

By Brandon Cowan
Web Editor

“South Park: The Fractured But Whole” is a sequel sequel to the game “South Park: The Stick of Truth.” Before I get into how The Fractured But Whole is an amusing game, I would like to say that I received this game for free. I beat the previous game “The Stick of Truth,” and I expected that game to be fun. But The Fractured But Whole was absolute genius. This sequel delivers a fun role-playing, turn-based puzzle game that could almost be too hot to handle.

The combat system is so good I normally am not a fan of turn-based games, but “The Fractured But Whole” does it so well. You play as New Kid from the previous game, but the twist is that you can get to control time with your feet.

The choice to go to the last game because you have to position yourself in the middle of just taking time. Every ability that you use has a different range that can be your opportunity.

You start off choosing one of the p crazy outfits and then later on you can choose a second one. You also get an ability where you can step on an enemy’s attack and then fall on the ground with your feet.

The “Fractured But Whole” not only has great combat, but it also has great humor. One of the colloquialisms in the game is yock of Derek and Kinect “You are done. I am done. I am done.”

There is also a stage where you can cut an enemy, you can’t smite them already.

You take away his keys and then have him up so he will not drive while intoxicated later on. You chase them down in a drunken angry state and you will get the Medal of Honor.

I really like that this game is just getting through the game and then get a to go. The game is over you love it. I love this game. Go buy it.

Restaurant Review

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill

By Megan Fenwick
Social Media Editor

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill has a new location that has opened on 2900 Calloway Drive. The restaurant was decorated with ancient Greek themed art and was somewhat dimly lit except for the light from the windows. I decided to get the Veggie Pita, which is a wheat or white pita filled with grilled squash, zucchini, mushrooms, onions, and bell peppers and topped with tzatziki. I chose the wheat pita and the lemon potatoes as my side along with a salad. My friend Lauren decided to get a side of the rice pilaf so we could share and don’t feel too bad about eating it.

I was really content with my choice. I did feel like they put too much tzatziki on top, so that it was falling out of the pita and the yogurt was overpowering the vegetables. I ordered a small side of a red pepper dip that tasted kind of like hummus and put some of it inside my pita to give it a spicy kick.

The lemon potatoes were well cooked and flavorful. If a little softer than I would have liked. The rice pilaf was flavorful as well, but I would probably choose the spanakopita instead. The other dish we ordered was the spanakopita, a spinach and feta filled Greek pita. The phyllo dough of the spanakopita was flaky and creamy and the filling was creamy and delicious. I had a small spanakopita before at a farmer’s market and didn’t think it was as good as this.

Lastly, I took some dessert from the restaurant’s bakery home with me because I was too full to eat it. It was really hard to choose from our options because of my sweet tooth craving. I’m still not sure what I would have chosen without her, but we loved it and it was the perfect ending to our meal.

I really like that this game is just getting through the game and then get a to go. The game is over you love it. I love this game. Go buy it.

Restaurant Review

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill

By Megan Fenwick
Social Media Editor

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill has a new location that has opened on 2900 Calloway Drive. The restaurant was decorated with ancient Greek themed art and was somewhat dimly lit except for the light from the windows. I decided to get the Veggie Pita, which is a wheat or white pita filled with grilled squash, zucchini, mushrooms, onions, and bell peppers and topped with tzatziki. I chose the wheat pita and the lemon potatoes as my side along with a salad. My friend Lauren decided to get a side of the rice pilaf so we could share and don’t feel too bad about eating it.

I was really content with my choice. I did feel like they put too much tzatziki on top, so that it was falling out of the pita and the yogurt was overpowering the vegetables. I ordered a small side of a red pepper dip that tasted kind of like hummus and put some of it inside my pita to give it a spicy kick.

The lemon potatoes were well cooked and flavorful. If a little softer than I would have liked. The rice pilaf was flavorful as well, but I would probably choose the spanakopita instead. The other dish we ordered was the spanakopita, a spinach and feta filled Greek pita. The phyllo dough of the spanakopita was flaky and creamy and the filling was creamy and delicious. I had a small spanakopita before at a farmer’s market and didn’t think it was as good as this.

Lastly, I took some dessert from the restaurant’s bakery home with me because I was too full to eat it. It was really hard to choose from our options because of my sweet tooth craving. I’m still not sure what I would have chosen without her, but we loved it and it was the perfect ending to our meal.

I really like that this game is just getting through the game and then get a to go. The game is over you love it. I love this game. Go buy it.

Restaurant Review

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill

By Megan Fenwick
Social Media Editor

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill has a new location that has opened on 2900 Calloway Drive. The restaurant was decorated with ancient Greek themed art and was somewhat dimly lit except for the light from the windows. I decided to get the Veggie Pita, which is a wheat or white pita filled with grilled squash, zucchini, mushrooms, onions, and bell peppers and topped with tzatziki. I chose the wheat pita and the lemon potatoes as my side along with a salad. My friend Lauren decided to get a side of the rice pilaf so we could share and don’t feel too bad about eating it.

I was really content with my choice. I did feel like they put too much tzatziki on top, so that it was falling out of the pita and the yogurt was overpowering the vegetables. I ordered a small side of a red pepper dip that tasted kind of like hummus and put some of it inside my pita to give it a spicy kick.

The lemon potatoes were well cooked and flavorful. If a little softer than I would have liked. The rice pilaf was flavorful as well, but I would probably choose the spanakopita instead. The other dish we ordered was the spanakopita, a spinach and feta filled Greek pita. The phyllo dough of the spanakopita was flaky and creamy and the filling was creamy and delicious. I had a small spanakopita before at a farmer’s market and didn’t think it was as good as this.

Lastly, I took some dessert from the restaurant’s bakery home with me because I was too full to eat it. It was really hard to choose from our options because of my sweet tooth craving. I’m still not sure what I would have chosen without her, but we loved it and it was the perfect ending to our meal.

I really like that this game is just getting through the game and then get a to go. The game is over you love it. I love this game. Go buy it.

Restaurant Review

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill

By Megan Fenwick
Social Media Editor

Athena’s Greek Café and Grill has a new location that has opened on 2900 Calloway Drive. The restaurant was decorated with ancient Greek themed art and was somewhat dimly lit except for the light from the windows. I decided to get the Veggie Pita, which is a wheat or white pita filled with grilled squash, zucchini, mushrooms, onions, and bell peppers and topped with tzatziki. I chose the wheat pita and the lemon potatoes as my side along with a salad. My friend Lauren decided to get a side of the rice pilaf so we could share and don’t feel too bad about eating it.

I was really content with my choice. I did feel like they put too much tzatziki on top, so that it was falling out of the pita and the yogurt was overpowering the vegetables. I ordered a small side of a red pepper dip that tasted kind of like hummus and put some of it inside my pita to give it a spicy kick.

The lemon potatoes were well cooked and flavorful. If a little softer than I would have liked. The rice pilaf was flavorful as well, but I would probably choose the spanakopita instead. The other dish we ordered was the spanakopita, a spinach and feta filled Greek pita. The phyllo dough of the spanakopita was flaky and creamy and the filling was creamy and delicious. I had a small spanakopita before at a farmer’s market and didn’t think it was as good as this.

Lastly, I took some dessert from the restaurant’s bakery home with me because I was too full to eat it. It was really hard to choose from our options because of my sweet tooth craving. I’m still not sure what I would have chosen without her, but we loved it and it was the perfect ending to our meal.

I really like that this game is just getting through the game and then get a to go. The game is over you love it. I love this game. Go buy it.
Fire: Prevention according to the Bakersfield Fire Department is essential in defeating fires.

Continued from Page 1

“homes” should be at least 100-foot clearance from the home in urban areas. Ideally, this would mean removing any tall vegetation or debris to meet the safety clearance. Property maintenance practices, such as clearing weeds and removing dead wood accumulations, will decrease chances of fire spread. Wood shingles, for example, are even more dangerous for their propensity, also to spread flames.

Should the fire department be called to any residence in an urban area, adequate turnout space should be made sure so that the fire engine can get to the back and side of the home.

In addition to having the proper fire extinguisher, it is important to have the correct fire extinguisher for the type of fire. In a wood burning house, you might encounter the difference between being able to control and extinguish the threat and the fire consuming your home.

Having a multi-purpose fire extinguisher is a great way to learn the difference.

Birds of prey don’t discriminate, fine home fires, and electrical fires, according to Fire. Fire extinguishers should not be stored under a lean-to, but instead placed somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

One of the common concerns of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.

For mental health awareness, we can all relate to wanting to do something, but not being able to do so. People coping with anxiety disorders deal with constant anxiety and not feeling worry because you can feel rushed and be overwhelmed. For a person suffering from an anxiety disorder, the feeling of panic that I have found to be the most common concern of residents is what to do should the pilot light go out on the oven, or where else. First off, order a smoke and carbon monoxide detector, and place them somewhere easily accessible, such as in a pantry or near entrance of the dwellings.
Women’s soccer continues winning streak

Bakersfield College women’s soccer team was victorious over Victor Valley College on Oct. 24 at the home game held at Memorial Stadium. It was a seemingly well-matched game both teams played with neither scoring in the first half. A couple of plays saw BC get close to scoring; one play was run by Jackie Garcia who passed to Lea Mason who then kicked it to Alexi Baca, but her pass was met short. Another play that came close was run by Drew Hallum who passed to Cameron Jimenez who kicked to Brianna Gutierrez who was fouled by the number two VVC player. The VVC player was yellow carded for talking back to the referee who threatened to kick him out of the field if she continued. The game saw many of the players injured with both teams seeing players fall. Lea Mason suffered a hit and was walked off the field to receive medical attention in the first half. Alexia Raudier injured her rib and fell for a time from the pain but was cleared to continue. Raudier was later kicked from behind by a VVC player as she attempted to keep control of the ball in the second half of the game.

“I didn’t know why she did that, she just kicked me, I was like ‘why did she kick me, why would she do that’,” Raudier recounted the incident after the game.

The first and only score of the game was made by Odalys Espinoza 77 minutes into the game. Espinoza headed the ball after Ashley Quintanilla’s corner kick which was met with cheers from the crowd. The goal secured BC’s victory over VVC and marked Espinoza’s third game winning goal and her tenth goal of the season. Coach Scott Dameron had this to say, “It was a good game, there are definitely some things we want to work on after this game... it was a physical game and both teams competed very hard but I think we did a better job competing in the second half.” The team won 1-0 and are currently on a three-win streak.

Bakersfield College men’s soccer team breaks losing streak with 1-0 win against Victor Valley College

Goalie Taylor Serrano makes a save from an attempted goal. #GETWorks for me because my service dog and I can travel to Bakersfield College safely and on time. The drivers are helpful, and my dog seems to enjoy the ride. GET brings me closer to my goals.”

Ian Kennedy
BC Student
Future Vocal Coach
GET Rider

661-869-2GET

GETWorks
getbus.org
Cannon fires final shot for the season

By Melissa Parrey

John A. McVey, Bakersfield Community Junior College's coach for the men's and women's tennis teams, shared some stories depending on the year, the majority of their funds come in from raffles.
I was quite pleased with my finished look but I was also quite teased mercilessly to create a red lip. I then feathered my eyebrows and lined my eyes with a dark black and white, red lipstick, but I decided to do so for my costume because I had an idea of what I was going to wear so I purchased my items at the 99 Cents Only Store. I had only been there the day before and meant to purchase a top but I was over processed and stressed out and I forgot and they were sold out.

As I was going through each and every aisle trying to find my desired top, I saw a white, sparrow shaped flower. I was all set and I finally had an idea of what I was going to wear so I purchased my items and headed straight home.

I then feathered my eyebrows and lined my eyes with a dark black and white, red lipstick, but I decided to do so for my costume because I had an idea of what I was going to wear so I purchased my items at the 99 Cents Only Store. I had only been there the day before and meant to purchase a top but I was over processed and stressed out and I forgot and they were sold out.

I was quite pleased with my finished look but I was also quite teased mercilessly to create a red lip. I then feathered my eyebrows and lined my eyes with a dark black and white, red lipstick, but I decided to do so for my costume because I had an idea of what I was going to wear so I purchased my items at the 99 Cents Only Store. I had only been there the day before and meant to purchase a top but I was over processed and stressed out and I forgot and they were sold out.

I was quite pleased with my finished look but I was also quite teased mercilessly to create a red lip. I then feathered my eyebrows and lined my eyes with a dark black and white, red lipstick, but I decided to do so for my costume because I had an idea of what I was going to wear so I purchased my items at the 99 Cents Only Store. I had only been there the day before and meant to purchase a top but I was over processed and stressed out and I forgot and they were sold out.